SPADEWORK BEGINS . . .

Indian Feedlot Proposal Eyed

By The Associated Press

Verbal spadework began Tuesday on a proposal to establish a cattle feeding program to boost economic development on the Omaha Indian Reservation at Macy.

Representatives of the Omaha tribe and government officials, meeting together for the first time regarding the proposal, expressed optimism that the idea could be a start in helping disadvantaged area residents.

But slight differences appeared to lie behind the optimism.

Edward Cline, chairman of the Omaha Tribal Council, said the Indians would be waiting for answers to questions regarding possible methods of financing the proposed program.

Assistance Somewhere

"I'm sure we all agree that there is technical assistance somewhere that would make it work," Cline said.

He indicated the general topic had drawn a favorable response when discussed by the tribal council. He stressed that the tribe had the land but lacked the knowledge and possibly the local funds needed to establish the program.

Some participating state and regional officials of government assistance programs, on the other hand, voiced concern over receiving an indication from the Indian people of sufficient support for the proposal to give reasonable chances for success.

Risky Business

They stressed that the cattle business was risky and good management would be required to make the plan succeed financially. Funds, they said, would probably be available somewhere to fund a workable program.

The meeting was called to discuss the feasibility of establishing the feedlot in line with a study released in December of 1967 by the Doane Agriculture Service.

Envisioned would be facilities for about 1,500 head that would initially employ up to 15 persons at a cost of about $250,000.

Must Be Good

Richard G. Schmitt, program coordinator for the U.S. Department of Agriculture with the Office of Economic Opportunity, said the Federal Economic Development Administration money lending officials would be "skeptical about EDA lending unless it's a pretty doggone good deal."

Schmitt said after reading the Doane report, he "realized it was quite clear that this was a feasible proposal."

The $10,000 study was financed by the EDA but no effort had yet been made to implement the proposal, he said.

One of the Few

"Thurston County is one of the few counties in Nebraska that is eligible for EDA assistance," Schmitt said.

Counties qualify for the assistance if their average farm income is 40% below the average national farm income as indicated by the most recent census, he said.

Schmitt suggested that the EDA might be expected to provide 65% of the money, with 20% coming from local economic development organizations, 10% from loans negotiated from banks or other lending institutions and 5% equity from the tribe.

Value of Land

State Economic Development Director James Monroe said economic value of land owned by the Indians could possibly be counted as part of the tribe's contribution to the project.

Monroe said his office would assume responsibility for pulling together possible financial alternatives.

RADICAL PROTEST VIOLENT

2 Bombings Attempted On U.S. Air Force Bases

. . . JAPANESE POLICE ARREST 1,410 PERSONS

Tokyo (UPI) — Radical students battled police in the streets of Tokyo Tuesday with firebombs and rocks during nationwide leftist demonstrations against the Japanese government's pro-American policy. There were two attempted bomb attacks on U.S. Air Force bases.

Police said 1,410 persons, mostly students, were arrested during the day — 1,123 in Tokyo and the rest elsewhere in Japan. The injured in Tokyo included 33 policemen, 22 students and 12 persons not involved in the protests.

No Americans Hurt

There were no reports of injuries among Americans. The U.S. military command had ordered all 40,000 American servicemen and military dependents to stay away from Tokyo during the protests.

The government had mobilized 70,000 policemen for riot duty during the "international antiwar day" called by the Communist and Socialist Parties to protest Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's policy of cooperation with the United States.

The policemen fought back against rioters with tear gas, clubs and high-pressure water cannon.

Man Captured

At Tachikawa Air Force Base, military police captured a Japanese as he tried to blow up a C130 cargo plane with dynamite. They said Shinji Kato, 24, drove his rented car through a guarded entrance, ignored orders to halt, but was seized under the plane with the package of dynamite under his arm.

Police said he carried a note saying he intended to blow up the plane and die because he was against U.S. planes being used in the Vietnam war.

Another man threw a homemade bomb over a fence at the nearby Yokota Air Force Base but escaped. The bomb failed to go off.

Most of the violence in Tokyo and other major cities was caused by leftwing student organizations, who scorn the traditional leftist parties as too conservative.

Through Streets

Bands of students rampaged through the streets of Tokyo, disrupting public and private transportation and attacking police cars, public buildings and other targets with fire bombs.

Police repelled an attempt by about 40 students to occupy the Shinjuku railroad station, five miles from downtown Tokyo, but the attack closed down two of the most heavily-traveled commuter lines.

Sato is scheduled to go to Washington Nov. 17 for talks with President Nixon on the return of Okinawa to Japan. Leftist elements oppose the visit because they fear the price will be closer cooperation between the United States and Japan in confronting Communist expansionism in Asia.

Murder Charges Filed Against Sioux City Man

. . . Arson, Other Violence Studied

Sioux City, Iowa (AP) — One Sioux City man was charged with murder and another with arson Tuesday in this western Iowa city, and area authorities investigated violence they believe may be related to labor disputes at four meat processing plants.

The murder charge was filed in Municipal Court against Harold Johnson, 36, whom Detective Capt. Frank O'Keefe identified as an employe of the struck Iowa Beef Packers, Inc., plant at Dakota City, Neb.

He was charged with the death of Nancy Nielsen, 16, who was shot early Tuesday in her apartment on Sioux City's near north side. Miss Nielsen's sister Michaelene, 19, was wounded.

$150,000 Bond

Johnson was ordered held in lieu of $150,000 bond on charges of murder and assault to commit murder.

Police charged Roger D. Harnack, 21, with arson and doing injury to a building in connection with a garage fire and a dynamite explosion that occurred a few hours prior to the shooting. He was held in lieu of $10,000 bond.

O'Keefe said Harnack, also on strike against Iowa Beef Packers, was in the Nielsen apartment when the shooting took place, and he said Michaelene is a striking employe of the plant.

Sold By Ex-Employe

The garage fire occurred at the home of Donald Bartholomew, who recently purchased the property from a former employe of the Dakota City plant, according to O'Keefe.

The dynamite explosion ripped through a basement wall at the home of Gary S. Goodwin, director of processing personnel at the Dakota City facility. Goodwin, his wife, two children and his mother-in-law were home, but no one was hurt.

Authorities said privately they believe several incidents of violence in northeast Nebraska and northwest Iowa in recent days are related to labor troubles at Iowa Beef Packers plants in Dakota City and in the Iowa towns of Fort Dodge, Mason City and LeMars.

Harry Smith, of Sioux City, an attorney for the striking union, described the Dakota City plant as "an armed camp that has a tendency to invite violence."

He said company officials have imported "wetbacks" from the southern United States and are in the process of building apartments for them.

SLAIN . . . Nancy Nielsen.

Many company supervisors, Smith said, have been deputized and carry shotguns or other weapons.

Smith, who also represents Harnack, termed the Tuesday morning shooting of the Nielsen sisters "accidental" and said it obviously has no connection with the strike.

In Dakota City, Sheriff Allan Bligh said it is his "best guess" that two dynamitings in the Dakota City area are related to the strike but he said there is "no factual basis" for the speculation.

Power was cut off from the Dakota City plant for about one hour Monday when three blasts knocked down power poles. Last week a power substation, which serves Iowa Beef's West Point, Neb., plant was damaged by a dynamite explosion.

D. W. Hill, general manager of Consumers Public Power District, which owns the damaged electrical equipment, urged authorities to take all necessary steps to protect Consumers property.

Members of Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America struck the Dakota City plant on Aug. 24.

'Wages, Conditions'

David W. Hart of Des Moines, Iowa, vice president of the union, said, "The basic dispute is over wages and working conditions. They're paying employes at their nonunion plants in West Point, Neb., and Luverne, Minn., more than at Dakota City (a union plant)."

Decision Reserved On Autopsy Petition

Wilkes-Barre, Pa. (AP) — A judge reserved decision Tuesday on a petition for an autopsy on the body of Mary Jo Kopechne who died in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's submerged automobile in waters off Chappaquiddick Island, Mass.

Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis, who made the request, indicated he may not press further for an autopsy if the Pennsylvania court ruling goes against him.

Judge Bernard C. Brominski of Common Pleas Court gave no indication when he would reach a verdict.

Dinis of New Bedford, Mass., said throughout the proceedings he needs the results of an autopsy for an inquest he has scheduled into the 28-year-old secretary's death. But after the hearing he said, "I don't think we'll go any further to appeal if we lose."

Just before adjournment, Brominski admitted into evidence, at Dinis' request, a tape recording of Kennedy's nationally televised explanation of the circumstances surrounding the accident.

Mrs. Joseph A. Kopechne, the dead woman's mother, sat with her head in her hands as Kennedy's voice echoed throughout the still courtroom.

The last witness to testify was Dr. Henry C. Friemuth of Baltimore, a toxicologist in the office of the Maryland medical examiner. He supported testimony that Miss Kopechne drowned. The blood stains found on her blouse were characteristic of drowning victim he said.

Dr. Werner Spitz, deputy Maryland medical examiner, agreed.

Dinis In Denial

Dinis denied on the witness stand that he had told an associate medical examiner, a few days after the accident, that an autopsy was not necessary.

Dinis said he had first sought an autopsy July 20, one day after the body was recovered.

By that time, he said, Miss Kopechne's body had been flown for burial in nearby Larksville in northeastern Pennsylvania.

Medicare Fee Hike Disclosed

The New York Times

Washington — The monthly fee paid by the elderly for doctor coverage under medicare will be increased from the present $4 to "something over $5," an administration official disclosed Tuesday.

This would mark the second increase in the medicare fee since the program went into effect in July 1696. The first fee was $3 a month.

The planned increase was disclosed by Robert M. Ball, commissioner of Social Security, during questioning by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Payment for doctor coverage under medicare is entirely voluntary on the part of the elderly. In contrast, all of the elderly automatically receive hospitalization coverage at no charge, financed through a portion of Social Security taxes paid during working years.

Ball attributed the planned increase in the voluntary medicare fee to skyrocketing medical costs.

When the last increase — from $3 to $ — was made, government officials conceded that the sum was insufficient, but they hoped that by keeping the figure low, doctors would voluntarily hold their charges in line.

Constitutional Revision Group Names Whitney

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

SEN. WHITNEY
Selected Chairman

The Nebraska Constitutional Revision Commission Tuesday named Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell as its chairman and launched the first thorough review of the state constitution in 50 years.

The commission divided itself into four subcommittees to begin an article-by-article study of the document and scheduled testimony from governmental spokesmen for Nov. 7.

Phil Gass of Omaha, senior vice president of Northern Natural Gas Company and the man Gov. Norbert Tiemann chose to head his Little Hoover Commission investigation of state government, was elected vice chairman of the 12-member unit.

Tiemann briefly addressed the organizational meeting, noting that the commission's recommendations for changes in the constitution can have "an immense impact" on the state's future development.

Commission members can point the state in the direction of progress, the governor said. And that, he noted, is "a tremendous responsibility."

The constitution was basically written nearly 100 years ago — in 1875 — and last received a thorough review at the constitutional convention of 1919-20.

The commission, composed of members appointed by the Legislature, the governor and the Supreme Court, was created by the 1969 Unicameral to prepare recommendations for the consideration of the 1971 session.

Lawmakers may then either reject the proposals or place them on the 1972 general election ballot for consideration by the voters.

Here is how the commission divided itself for its initial studies:

—bill of rights, distribution of powers, judiciary, suffrage: James Brown of Omaha, Sen. George Syas of Omaha, Gass.

—legislative, executive branches of state government: Rodney Smith of South Sioux City, Mrs. James Weber of Lincoln, Whitney.

—revenue, counties, public service corporations, municipal corporations, miscellaneous corporations, government indebtedness: Robert McKelvie of Alma, Albert Kjar of Lexington, Sen. W. H. Hasebrok of West Point.

—education, militia, miscellaneous provisions, constitutional amendment procedure: David Dow of Lincoln, Mrs. J. F. Lucas of Omaha, Walter Lauritsen of Grand Island.

Invited to present recommendations to the Nov. 7 meeting were Tiemann, Attorney General Clarence Meyer, Secretary of State Frank Marsh, State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley and representatives of the Nebraska Association of County Officials and the League of Nebraska Municipalities.

Whitney suggested that only proposed amendments approved by at least seven members be recommended to the Legislature, but no formal action was taken on his proposal.

Syas proposed the initial list of witnesses.

"Let's cast the bait out into the stream and see what we catch," he said.

Chile's Government, Military Rebels Bargain

Santiago, Chile (AP) — Chilean army units staged an uprising demanding better pay and exchanged gunfire with government forces late Tuesday night while an emissary of President Eduardo Frei sought to work out a peace pact.

The government radio announced 14 persons were wounded in the flurry of shots at the heavily fortified regimental headquarters defended by the rebels near downtown Santiago.

The rebel leader, Brig. Gen. Roberto Viaux Marambo, denied that the uprising aimed at a military coup—the first in Chile in 30 years. "We have no links with any political parties nor do we try to change any constitutional powers," he said.

Before the shooting incident, rebels announced through megaphones that an agreement with the government had been reached and would be broadcast to the nation. But there was no confirmation in a government communique which at a late hour was urging the dissidents "to abandon their rebellious attitude."

The gunfire broke out apparently during a moment of tension as a loyal army unit walked toward rebel lines ringing the grey stone fortress.

Officers inside the headquarters said a soldier apparently fired accidentally. The shot touched off a wild exchange of fire.

Maj. Gen. Alfredo Mahn, a peace emissary of President Frei took over a loudspeaker and ordered all units to cease fire.

Before resuming deliberations with Mahn, Viaux said he hoped an agreement would be reached during the night.

Viaux said earlier he was "still profoundly loyal to President Frei and if the chief of state so orders me I will lay down my arms."

Frei broadcast to the nation that he had the "overwhelming backing of all armed forces" and declared "no one will move me from here."

The government imposed a state of siege and suspended congress so it could deal with what it called an "attempt at military sedition."

Nixonites Try To Keep Critics On Defensive

(C) New York Times News Service

Washington — The Nixon administration sought to keep its critics on the defensive Tuesday by privately circulating a "fact sheet" that attempted to show that the administration has moved toward de-escalation of the war. The document's thrust was to show how the administration had modified or departed from the policies of the Johnson administration.

Doves Give Nixon Time

Washington — Congressional doves Tuesday sought to give President Nixon time, flexibility and encouragement in working out a policy to end the Vietnam war. Sen. J. William Fulbright announced that he was postponing his scheduled hearings into the war, at least until after the President's Nov. 3 speech. (More on Page 2.)

Protest Chiefs Trade Okays

Washington — The Vietnam Moratorium Committee, which staged the Oct. 15 demonstrations, and the New Mobilization Committee To End the War in Vietnam, which plans to hold demonstrations in Washington Nov. 13-15, have endorsed each other's plans for the November protests and pledged that the protests would be "legal and non-violent."

Nixon Uses Loose Leash

Washington — The White House said Tuesday that the administration does not always speak with one voice on public issues. Press secretary Ronald Ziegler said President Nixon did not "put a leash" on anyone. Ziegler took pains to say Vice President Agnew, Secretary of State Rogers and the President were each expressing their own views in their statements about last week's moratorium.

Social Democrats Begin Rule In West Germany

Bonn (AP) — Willy Brandt was elected West Germany's first Social Democratic chancellor Tuesday by a narrow margin, ringing down the curtain on 20 years of Christian Democratic rule.

Three weeks after the Sept. 28 federal elections, the new Bundestag voted the 55-year-old Brandt into office by 251 votes — two more than the required absolute majority.

Asked by the speaker if he accepted the mantle of leadership, the former foreign minister and Berlin mayor shot to his feet and declared with a trembling voice: "Yes, Mr. President, I accept election."

Burst Into Applause

Immediately, the Social and Free Democrats, who make up the new ruling coalition, burst into applause.

Outgoing Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, wearing a pallid smile, walked wearily across the chamber to shake Brandt's hand.

Notably absent among the well-wishers was fiery Franz Josef Strauss, leader of the conservative Christian Social Union, the Bavarian wing of Kiesinger's party.

While Brandt was celebrating his victory, financial observers in Bonn said they expect his government to decide in the next few days on revaluation of the mark. Bonn sources said they expect the decision at a cabinet meeting Friday, with an announcement of the mark's new value by week's end.

Tuesday night, the new chancellor announced his coalition cabinet of 12 Social Democrat and three Free Democrat ministers.

CHANCELLOR BRANDT . . . waves.

The election capped a long and colorful political career. It was Brandt's third successive try at the chancellorship.

His success was made possible by nationwide gains in the federal election, giving the Social Democrats 224 seats, 22 more than in the last election.

Failing to score an absolute majority, Brandt linked his party with the Free Democrats, under Walter Scheel, who won 30 seats. Their combined 254 seats constitute a majority of only 12 over the Christian Democrats, headed by Kiesinger.

It is the most sharply divided parliament so far in West Germany. Kiesinger has promised a "tough but constructive" opposition, although he says the Christian Democrats will shun polemics.

Brandt earmarked Scheel as foreign minister and is known to have promised broad freedom of movement to all of his 15 Cabinet ministers.

Aiken Expects Pullout Inside A Year

Washington (AP) — Sen. George D. Aiken, dean of Senate Republicans, said Tuesday he expects practically all American ground troops will be withdrawn from South Vietnam within one year.

The Vermont senator sounded a keynote for optimistic forecasts after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee postponed a planned series of Vietnam hearings until after President Nixon reports to the nation on his policy Nov. 3.

"As a matter of courtesy it seemed proper for the committee to defer its hearings until after the President has spoken," said Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the chairman.

The hearings were to have opened Oct. 27 for five days, including appearances by Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

Resolutions Are Subject

The subject matter: a series of Senate resolutions urging U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam, and one, with 36 sponsors, calling upon Communist North Vietnam to offer concessions for the sake of peace.

Aiken, ranking Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate, "Unless the unexpected happens, I expect that practically all of our ground troops will be withdrawn by a year from now."

There are 408,000 U.S. Army and Marine troops in Vietnam, out of a total American military force of 501,900.

"I have been kept well informed from many sources on the progress of the President's withdrawal policy," Aiken said.

But he said the withdrawal forecast was his own.

Optimism Up—Scott

"There is a growth in optimism as to the hope for speedier deceleration of the war," said Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the minority leader.

Scott said Nixon's Nov. 3 speech will "clarify all of the steps that are being taken" in that direction.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said Nixon is doing everything he can "to bring about as rapid a withdrawal as possible and a responsible settlement."

"My only beef is that I'd like to see it faster," the Democratic leader said. "I'm sure the President would, too."

Aiken said the pace of withdrawal is accelerating. He said it will continue unless there are developments not now foreseen by U.S. policymakers.

Intervention Listed

In that category, Aiken listed such possibilities as a upsurge in Communist action, or intervention by another nation.

But at the same time, Aiken said there can be no precipitous withdrawal unless the United States is prepared "to assume responsibility for Vietnam.

46 Reds, 7 Americans Die In Flash Firefights

Saigon (AP) — American ground forces fought a half-dozen short but sharp battles in the area north and west of Saigon, the U.S. Command said Tuesday. The flash firefights were typical of the actions that have been fought by small units during the current lull in large-scale offensive operations.

American casualties were seven killed and 20 wounded in the battles which ranged from 18 to 85 miles north of the capital Monday. Forty-six enemy soldiers were killed.

Two more Americans died when their Air Force OV10 Bronco spotter plane was hit by enemy ground fire and crashed 21 miles east of Saigon.

The biggest battle broke in midafternoon as 150 troopers of the 1st Air Cavalry Division waited at a landing zone for helicopters to extract them from the area they had just patrolled.

Suddenly mortar shells began falling among them, the first of a 25-round barrage, and North Vietnamese infantrymen opened fire with machine guns and rifles.

The cavalrymen shot back as they darted for cover, and within minutes artillery, helicopter gunships and fighter-bombers were slamming the enemy lines.

It was all over in 30 minutes as the North Vietnamese soldiers faded into the jungle. Five American and 14 enemy soldiers were dead, and 13 Americans were wounded.

At about the same time, 25 miles to the south, other 1st Air Cav troops fought an off-and-on skirmish through heavy jungle overgrowth. The fight cost the Americans two killed and seven wounded. Two enemy bodies were found in the battle area.

There were no American casualties in the other clashes.

Rookies Hard On The Clutch

Youngstown, Ohio (AP) — Youngstown's City Board of Control Tuesday authorized the spending of $37,791 for 16 new police cars, including an air-conditioned cruiser for the chief.

All 16 are to have automatic transmissions, the first such cars used by the city police force. Officials said many new policemen were unable to drive standard shift cars and were burning up too many clutches trying to learn.

Legislators Invited By Moscow

©The New York Times

Washington — A United States congressional delegation has been officially invited to the Soviet Union in what diplomats expect will be the start of a regular exchange of visits by Soviet and American legislators.

Congressional sources said a delegation of nearly 20 members of both houses of Congress, headed by Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., was scheduled to leave for Moscow Friday on a U.S. Air Force plane.

They are to spend two days in the Soviet capital as guests of the Soviet branch of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, then stop in the Central Asian city of Tashkent before proceeding to New Delhi to participate in the IPU's annual meeting.

Though individual senators and representatives have frequently visited Moscow over the years, congressional sources said this was the first time that a visit by a formal U.S. congressional delegation had been arranged

Port Moresby, New Guinea (UPI) — Officials said an epidemic of influenza raging since August has claimed at least 526 lives.

Nixon Opposes 46% Increase In Veterans' School Benefits

Washington (AP) — President Nixon voiced extreme concern Tuesday — implying a possible veto — over a pending bill in Congress that would boost education allowances to veterans by an average of $550 million a year for four years.

But he fully supported a recommendation from a presidential committee which urged a less expensive program that would average $85 million a year for the some period.

The President explained his position in a letter to Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., chairman of a Senate labor subcommittee, which is considering raising veterans' educational benefits.

"I am in sympathy with a justifiable increase in educational allowances for post-Korean and Vietnam veterans," Nixon said.

"Yet, I consider the magnitude of the increases contained in HR1159 to require reconsideration for two reasons. Proposed rates are excessive and their effect would be inflationary."

The House-passed measure would boost veterans' educational assistance payments an average of more than 26% but the Senate subcommittee upped this to 46% above current rates.

The government now pays veterans $130 a month to help with their tuition, living and other expenses while in college. A veteran can receive this sum for 36 months, or four academic years. The presidential commission's proposal would provide a 13% increase in assistance to about $147 a month.

Manley Feedlot Is Blamed For Cedar Creek Pollution

. . . Foxley Declines To Revea l Number Of Cattle Involved

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Take a city of 30,000 people and place it at the head of a small Class III stream and you have a comparison of the pollution problem facing the Nebraska Water Pollution Council with problems on Cedar Creek in Cass County.

Tuesday the council held the first public hearing on complaints of pollution of Cedar Creek as it involves the Midwestern Feeding Company's estimated 25,000 head feedlot located near Manley and at the headwaters of Cedar Creek.

The feedlot problem has appeared on many prior council agendas and resulted more than a year ago in the installation of lagoons to attempt a solution to pollution problems.

The first testimony came from Ralph Langemeier, state stream biologist, who summed up tests made at seven stations on Cedar Creek for over a two year period. Langemeier said "in summary water quality standards have been violated for more than a two year period of the surveys."

W. C. Foxley of Omaha, general manager for Midwestern Feeding Company, declined to tell the council how many cattle were being fed on the estimated 140 acres of lots on the 360 acres of land owned by Midwestern Feeding Company in Cass County.

Stockholders Not Revealed

Foxley also declined to inform the council who the stockholders were in Midwestern Feeding Company, but he did after repeated questioning acknowledge that Foxley & Company of Omaha was a stockholder but not a majority stockholder in Midwestern Feeding Company.

Testimony provided by neighboring landowners estimated the feedlot population to be between 20,000 and 28,000 head, with instances of many more cattle sometimes being in the feedlots.

T. A. Filipi, state director of sanitation and executive secretary of the council, told the council that assuming there were 20,000 head in the Midwestern Feedlots it would be equivalent to 300,000 persons in pollution waste.

Raymond Horn of Weeping Water, who farms a mile and three-quarters down stream from the feedlot and who owns land on both sides of Cedar Creek told this story:

Nebraska News

"We noticed our first smell from Cedar Creek during the summer of 1966, shortly after the feedlot began operations. A half inch or more of rain brings solid waste down Cedar Creek and the whole side of the creek bank is lined with solid manure.

Wildlife Gone

"I never see a muskrat anymore or any wildlife since the spring of 1966. We have had to provide other water for our cattle as they no longer will drink water from Cedar Creek. Conditions are so bad we can't even get the cattle to cross the creek without difficulty."

G. W. Ault of Cedar Creek, told the council members he and his family have lived in the area all their lives but that the Cedar Creek once widely used and enjoyed can no longer be used.

"I wouldn't want my family in the stream anymore. In all my lifetime I never saw conditions where every species of fish will come to the top for air down near the mouth of Cedar Creek where it empties into the Platte River."

Ault warned that a flood like the area experienced in 1965 would endange" a new resort area below the mouth of the creek that now has 300 leases and new homes in an area that has a history of being flooded by Cedar Creek.

There wasn't any zoning in Cass County when the feedlot was constructed in 1966, Foxley said.

Frank Remar of Omaha, a land owner and part time resident of a cabin near Cedar Creek, told the council:

"For the last two years many times the stream looked black or dark green. You see a lot of dead fish and smell manure.

"Last week I found a half dozen dead ducks along Cedar Creek and we are afraid to drink our well water because it now smells just like the creek water.

"I have followed the stream to the source, the feedlot Sometimes the pollution comes down the creek like molasses."

Lagoons Ignored

Residents of the area claim that the lagoons installed to help the matter have not been properly pumped out and maintained.

Foxley discussed what measures might be coming available to help the matter for commercial feedlots but under questioning he did not wish to describe his feedlot operation as being "commercial."

"A commercial lot is generally a feedlot that feeds for other people. We own and feed our own cattle," said Foxley.

Foxley said the problem was brought to his attention last year. He says the lagoons have not been successful in solving the matter.

"It is our intention to do what we can to eliminate any possible pollution from our feeding facility at Manley," Foxley told the council hearing.

While discussion centered on solutions, two commercial operators attending the hearing said they could solve the problem for a $30,000 investment in equipment to handle the feedlot waste.

T. C. Reeves of Central City, a member of the Water Pollution Council, testified that on August 28, 1969, he was denied access to the feedlot for observation purposes.

State law provides that members of the council have reasonable access to property for inspection purposes.

Runoff Problem

Foxley said the problem of controlling runoff from feedlots is four times as much in Nebraska as it is at Hereford, Tex. This he contributed to the rainfall being twice in Nebraska what it is in Texas and the twice as much feedlot space allotted cattle in Nebraska in comparison with Texas.

"What do we do now," asked 82-year-old J. R. Mayfield of Louisville, who sought some assistance from the Water Pollution Council for land he owned in the area of Cedar Creek.

Carl C. Chloupek, of Lincoln area representative for Federal Water Control Administration, U.S. Department of Interior, told the council that good management is important in handling feedlot waste and that simple, inexpensive and effective means has been proposed to solve the problem.

He suggested putting diversion ditches across feedlots or to regrade steep slopes to keep solids from the feedlots being carried off too fast.

No action is expected from the Water Pollution Council until a Nov. 14 meeting, according to John Samson of Omaha, who chaired the hearing.

Leighton Named

Fremont (UPI)—Frederick B. Leighton, Omaha, has been named vice president for development at Midland College, Dr. L. Dale Lund, president, has announced. The appointment is effective immediately.

Denver Zephyr Owners Keep 'Silver Streak'

Denver (UPI)—It was once called a "symphony of stainless steel," but the owners of the Denver Zephyr discovered no music to their ears when they put the 44-year-old train on the auction block this week.

The 12-car train, which cost $1 million when it was originally built, couldn't even provoke a bid until the starting price was lowered to $10,000.

The bidding finally got to $25,000, but that was submitted by the train's owners, Richard McKinley and Leo F. Watson of Denver.

"We could have sold it as scrap for $30,000 and had placed a minimum value of $75,000 on it," McKinley explained. "I don't know what we'll do with it now."

Although they won't have to pay the $30,000 for their own train, McKinley and Watson will have to provide a commission of about 5% to Parke-Bernet Galleries, the auction company.

Still, the two owners said they weren't too disappointed by the auction.

McKinley said they might split up the cars and sell them individually "or we might turn it into an excursion train."

Whatever the final decision, it was a dismal day for the once proud train which could hit a peak speed of 116 miles per hour as it rushed between Chicago and Denver. The train once was even featured in a movie, "The Silver Streak."

Nebraskan Likely Only Female Dredge Operator

West Point, Neb. (AP) — Linina Reiman may be the only woman dredge operator in the nation.

She runs a dredge which pumps sand and gravel from a 50-foot pit at the Robert J. Stalp Co. four miles south of here.

"I get a little dirty, but I don't think it is a hard job," she says.

"I have to watch so the line doesn't get clogged. I change the oil filters, grease the pump and move the barge, which is the heaviest work I have to do."

The West Point mother of two used to work in Fremont but she decided to take the dredging job because it was closer to home.

Supports Family

"I have to solely support my children," she explains. "With this job I can be close to them and work too"

Two men work at the sand pit with Linina and between nine and 12 truck drivers work from the pit everyday.

"They (male employes) have a lot of respect for her," owner Robert Stalp said. "I think probably because she learned just as fast as any man."

"She does a real good job and is one of the better pumpers we have ever had," he continued. "She takes her work real seriously and tries to please. She always has a smile."

Linina had one unfortunate experience her third day on the job. Clad in overalls, boots and engineer's cap, she fell out of the boat which takes her from the bank to the barge. But she says she just "smiled it off."

Young Driver Dies In Crash

Omaha (UPI) — Dale Scott Thompson, 18, Omaha, was dead on arrival at Douglas County Hospital early Tuesday following a one-car accident here.

Police said young Thompson was alone in the car, which was being pursued by a police cruiser. The car struck a metal utility pole near 87th and Cedar Streets.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It is unfortunate that members of the City Council complaining about the Humane Society's enforcement of the dog leash law have not taken a more constructive approach. It is unfortunate because the Humane Society is probably the most harassed and frustrated public agency of local government.

It is an agency which needs help, not the carping complaints of council members who don't know what they are talking about. How long has it been, for instance, since the city's well paid, well organized legal department has done anything to help the society enforce the laws on animals?

This is something in the council's own back yard which it should look into. It takes enforcement through the legal department to put teeth into any law and generally speaking there is no prosecution under the laws relating to dogs.

Currently, the Humane Society has exactly one truck and one driver covering the entire city. This is because one man is home sick and two vacancies exist. At full strength, the society has four men and four trucks, plus a night man.

And when you look at the salaries paid, you can understand why this situation exists. The society pays $275 a month for drivers to start; this for a 44-hour week. When the job is learned, the driver goes to $300 a month.

Complaint was made about unlicensed dogs and that is a legitimate complaint. But there is no law forcing anyone to obtain a license for their dog. A license is supposed to be obtained but there is nothing that can be done about it if a dog owner chooses to ignore the law.

The only way this violator can be caught is if the dog is caught running loose off the premises. Then the animal cannot be redeemed without payment of an impoundment fee and the purchase of a license.

And then there is the matter of personalities. There is no tougher area of law to deal with than that regulating animals. Society drivers and other personnel are subject to constant insults from people who take offense to all dog law enforcement.

Secondly, there is an almost total lack of cooperation on the part of the public with the society. Who, for instance, will sign a complaint against their neighbor's dog so that the neighbor can be prosecuted in court by the society?

Very few people will do so, which leaves the society with no legal grounds on which to proceed. Also, the dog owning public is largely indifferent to the leash law.

People have a tendency to ignore the dog leash or tieup law, especially at night. Despite the law against it, they will let their pet run at large, at least for limited times. As a dog owner himself, this writer can testify to the fact that this is a most tempting practice.

When it comes to laws on dogs you have a whole new world of human nature to deal with. You can't tell a dog what to do or not to do. When a dog is running at large, you can't holler at it and expect it to stop. Chances are it will run.

Thus, the society is left to deal with the owners of animals and with those who complain about the animals. In the latter category are some people who just don't like dogs and they will never stop complaining. And in the former category are some who are simply irresponsible and will make no effort at all to control their pet.

All things considered, there will never be 100 percent compliance with the law. The society could not, if it had a hundred trucks, stop every single case of a dog running at large.

But the operations of the society can undoubtedly be improved. This improvement, however, will come only with a City Council desire to work with the society, not ill conceived denunciation of the organization.

'Where Do They Get Those Crazy Ideas . . .?'

Mafia Under Attack

For an act of personal courage that could reap a political windfall, nothing recently matches the steps taken this week by the ambitious attorney general of Florida who has challenged the invasion of legitimate business by the Mafia.

Earl Faircloth, the attorney general who would be governor of Florida, filed 21 civil suits Monday against south Florida resorts, bars and other businesses, alleging they are financed by organized crime. An assistant to Faircloth, who aspires to the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, claims — possibly without fear of contradiction — that "this is the first time in the history of the United States that anyone has moved against the Mafia" in their investment of money in legitimate enterprises. One target supposedly is Mafia kingpin Meyer Lansky, a long-time top figure in organized crime in the South.

Faircloth is using a new Florida law designed to eliminate mobster influence in legitimate businesses by revoking their corporation charters in moving against alleged fronts for illegal betting, sports fixing and prostitution, among other activities.

We allude to what must be Faircloth's personal courage, because whether he is politically motivated or not, it takes a certain amount of guts to stand up to a massively powerful shadow organization whose very existence is a national scandal. He stands conspicuously alone in this effort.

The Nixon administration has proposed an all-out war on organized crime, but it has not moved forward. Law enforcement officials across the land decry the Mafia influence and its toll in dollars and lives, but stop short there. At least one public official is ready to act.

A Sign Of Strength

A sign of this nation's strength is found in the California Superior Court decision against the University of California's firing of a black teacher who is a member of the Communist Party. The case involves Angela Davis, hired by university regents and then fired when her Communist affiliation was learned.

The ruling will horrify some people. They will wonder what kind of a nation it is that laws which protect ideologies in direct conflict with our own established government. But that is the point at which our strength shows.

There are a great many non-Communist nations in which there is no bar to the existence of the Communist Party. The fact that we can permit the existence of the party and its members is evidence of the fact that we have nothing to fear in an open contest with communism.

If we had to ferret out every Communist and ban them from every form of existence it would seem that we would be operating from a position of weakness.

And perhaps even more important is the fact that we have no strings attached to our political freedom. If Miss Davis could be fired for her party affiliation, how much farther could such things go? At what ideological point would we say that an individual was unacceptable? There are still laws in this nation against treason but it takes more than a point of view for them to be invoked.

The court decision on Miss Davis will not be universally applauded but it is not the subversive thing that some people might consider it to be.

U.N. A 'Monstrosity'

Lincoln, Neb.

The organizing of the United Nations took place almost totally on American soil. If the United Nations and its charter were to be a forerunner of world government, is this not a blatant insult to every American citizen?

What did the planners of this monstrosity think that American citizens were to do with our constitution?

A day has been set aside to honor the United Nations and its charter. The day is Oct. 24th. Pray tell us how it is that the Russian government seems to have the money to carry on wars in several areas of our earth but never seems to have the money to pay its share of the financing of the United Nations!

Guess who for many years has paid the greatest share of the financing of the operation of the United Nations? You are right — the American taxpayers!

Youth Challenged

Lincoln, Neb.

I have read many articles pertaining to the moratorium on the war. Much time and energy was expended in this effort. How much more dignified and simple it would have been had all these young persons, or should I say chickens, sent a statement to Hanoi stating that we would be happy to pull out of Vietnam if they would do the same and promise to leave South Vietnam alone to choose their own government.

Those young people looked intelligent but they surely know their actions have encouraged aggression the world over. Do they honestly think there would be peace if we pulled out of Vietnam? There would not be peace, there would be wholesale slaughter until the whole of Vietnam was controlled by the Communists.

We did not vote for Mr. Nixon. We are not fond of him, but he is our president and we think he is trying to do what is best and honorable for our country. If we would all get behind our president and show the aggressors we mean business we think there would be a chance that Hanoi might come to terms. This moratorium has made them happy that they have supporters in our country. Why should they force their Communist rule on people who abhor it?

We thank God these chickens are a minority. If war comes to our country, what will they do? War will be here if aggression is not stopped somewhere. We have proud memories of many who have lost their lives now and in former wars. We have no slackers or draft dodgers to be ashamed of.

Maybe we are considered hawks, but we believe Hanoi and all those ports should be bombed. Let the north know the bloodshed they have caused in the south. We think all this dissention was instigated by unscrupulous politicians to gain attention by brainwashing our gullible youth. Some day these parading youths may have to face a situation that requires courage. How will they act?

Peons Work

Tecumseh, Neb.

No truer words were ever spoken than in the letter, "Wage Inequities," in the Oct. 16 paper. I am an employe in the state institution and know what it is to see employes that do nothing. But like you say, the yes men never open their mouths about anything but also don't do anything in the line of work.

When it comes to filling in the questionnaires which we will all be filling out, the ones that do the least will be the ones that say they do the most. If they say they do so much, someone should see that it is done by that person or persons.

The trouble in all of our state institutions is that the PEONS that you mentioned are the ones that have to do all the work while others sit in a fancy office drawing huge wages and sending out all kinds of directives telling the peons what to do and how to do it.

This they have read out of a book and then think it can be applied. They would never get their hands dirty to do the things they demand others to do.

These people have been working for the state for a good many years but in the eyes of the higher-ups, they know absolutely nothing. But should the peons not show up for work, I'm sure the ones that have got all their knowledge out of a book could do all the things they expect out of the peons.

Little Rock Blacks Now Solid Citizens

Remember the nine Negro children who desegregated Little Rock's all-white Central High back in 1957 and went to class for a year with a police escort ordered up by President Eisenhower?

That's one full school generation ago — and where are they now?

Well, one place they aren't is in riots. Mrs. Daisy Bates says they're too busy with productive jobs and raising families.

Mrs. Bates is the energetic lady who, as president of the Arkansas NAACP, went through that frightening pioneering year with the nine black teen-agers, catching as much abuse as anybody.

Since then she has kept up with them through letters, telephone calls and visits, and she reports they all turned out to be solid citizens.

☆ ☆ ☆

Those were tense days, when Gov. Orval Faubus, in defiance of the Supreme Court, stationed his National Guard at the school doors for three weeks to keep the black students out.

Then President Eisenhower stepped in, ordered Faubus to obey the law, and assigned federal troops to escort the children for the entire term.

"It was a year of chaos, bedlam and turmoil," recalls Mrs. Bates. "Many mornings the children walked to class through crowds of angry parents yelling ugly words and threats.

"Inside the school it was even worse. The white children spit on them and tossed burning cigarettes down their necks. They learned early to keep their collars tightly buttoned.

"But they didn't grow up bitter. That horrible year gave them something to draw on, some kind of strength."

All nine went on to college and six graduated, one with honors. A seventh left four months before getting her degree because of a mental breakdown. Mrs. Bates says no one knows for sure if her high-school experiences caused her deep depressions.

Seven are married. Another interesting statistic is that five of the seven married across racial lines.

Two men have white wives; three women have white husbands.

Two are teachers, one works for a labor union, another sells real estate, one is an accountant and owns a record shop, one is a social case worker, two are housewives, and one joined the WACs.

"Most of them are active in the NAACP," Mrs. Bates says. "But none of them is mixed up in anything extreme, like the Black Panthers. They're all interested in civil rights. They're involved. They know how it feels to be abused and they'd like to do something about it."

☆ ☆ ☆

Arkansas has a new governor now . . . the Arkansas Gazette won a Pulitzer Prize for its unyielding stand on the side of the law . . . 30 per cent of the students at Central High now are black . . . and Mrs. Bates has a new job.

She's director of a self-help project rehabilitating and restoring the village of Michellville, Ark., a farming community of 259 families.

Panel To Attack Pharmaceutical Industry For Contributing To Drug Abuse Problems

WASHINGTON — The House Crime Committee, headed by Florida Rep. Claude Pepper, is preparing a slashing attack on the nation's pharmaceutical industry for its part in nourishing the drug abuse problem.

One of the chief culprits, who will be identified in public hearings later this week in San Francisco, is Bates Laboratories, which has diverted at least 3,000,000 amphetamine pills to Mexico. The hot pills were later smuggled back across the border for distribution to narcotics users in the United States.

This information is revealed in a memo drafted by special counsel Joseph L. Nellis for the confidential background of the committee members.

"For the confidential information of the committee and staff only," states the Nellis memo, "the information which we have obtained through the use of our subpoenaes has enabled us to give (the Federal Narcotics Bureau) a major case of diversion involving Bates Laboratories, Inc., in which at least 3,000,000 amphetamine pills were shipped to a fictitious company in Mexico and a broker in San Ysidro, Calif. Photographs of the 'drops' in Mexico are now being secured."

Witnesses at the San Francisco hearings will include representatives of Bates Laboratories; Smith, Kline and French; Burroughs-Wellcome and Company; and Eli Lilly and Company.

"These witnesses are all involved in the production or distribution of dangerous drugs and/or ingredients," the memo points out. "Since the present laws are inadequate, many of the operations which we will discuss with these witnesses constitute acts of negligence in providing little or no protection for safeguarding the legitimate destination of their products."

Phases of the San Francisco hearings will take on all the chilling characteristics of a Perry Mason thriller.

It will "be prefaced by the testimony of a police informer whose credibility and credentials the staff has very carefully checked and who will testify anonymously," the memo promises mysteriously. "For obvious reasons, he cannot be identified in public.

"He is still active as a police informer and enjoys the confidence of various underworld elements who deal in drugs. He is 40 years of age, studied at various music conservatories and at a university for two years, has a juvenile record for petty theft and burglary and is on federal probation for interstate transportation of narcotics. He has been a user of and dealer in all forms of narcotics."

The secret informer has spent some time in Mexico, buying and selling narcotics. He "will describe his activities in full detail . . . He will testify behind a screen . . ."

☆ ☆ ☆

Several operators of clandestine laboratories will also be called in to testify. Richard Bennetto, currently residing in the San Mateo County jail, will "concentrate on the economics of illicit manufacturing and how easy it is to obtain the formulas and chemicals for making dangerous drugs."

James Timmons "will detail his activities in purchasing chemicals in the bay area and his operation of an illicit laboratory under the name of Allen Research in Mountain View, Calif."

James King, a 28-year-old physics and chemistry student, will dwell on distribution techniques learned from personal experience. One witness, Gene Myers, is the proprietor of the "Pebble Palace," ostensibly a hardware store which is allegedly a front for the distribution of illicit drugs.

"Mr. Myers is neither a chemist nor in the chemical business," the Nellis memo states, "but merely deals in ingredients as an extra lucrative source of income.

"His method of purchasing ingredients . . . from companies which manufacture them is of special interest since apparently the companies . . . do not make careful investigation of their prospective purchasers. This witness will give the committee an excellent sample of pure bootleg activity in areas where dangerous drugs or their ingredients are not controlled by federal law."

'Doomed' City Saved By Magic

WASHINGTON — New York had been doomed until the Mets won the World Series. "We are doomed" New Yorkers had been wont to say. And indeed it appeared that they were, for they were strangling on noxious gases, and there was no place to park, and there was much felonious assault.

Children grew to manhood and womanhood without remembering a time when anything good had happened. "We are doomed" they said. And yet they hoped, for in the late 1960's the city was swept by a wave of mystic faith such as occasionally rises out of Asia to shatter old decaying orders.

It was prophesied by the oracles of this new faith that the city would be saved by the coming of 25 young men wearing knickers and beanie caps. And it was said that the time of the salvation would be marked by miracles performed on a grassy plot near La Guardia airport.

And so, when the Mets won the World Series with assistance which sports writers timidly called "magic," but could only have been divine, the city assumed that the prophecy had been fulfilled.

People pranced in the streets in happy delirium. Bus drivers who had once been noted for passing by elderly ladies in the rain not only stopped for passengers, but also refused to collect fares and shouted "everybody on free!"

And indeed, wondrous things began to occur. Two days after the victory, a pedestrian on the west side stopped to help a man who was lying unconscious and bleeding on the sidewalk.

On the following day a mental patient attracted a large street crowd by threatening to jump from a roof, and not one person in the entire crowd screamed at him to go ahead and jump. Everybody said it was "amazing."

When, on the 22nd of October, a taxi stopped to pick up a fare in the garment district, Mayor Lindsay pronounced New York "a city of destiny." The next day Jerry Koosman made the Long Island Rail Road run on time and Tom Seaver, not to be outdone, eliminated air pollution.

Thanks to Rod Gaspar, oaks and elms began springing up all over the Bronx, Queens, Brooklyn and Manhattan, and a week passed without any vandals attacking them with axes.

☆ ☆ ☆

By that time, of course, President Nixon had been so inspired by the Mets' example that he had ended the war in Vietnam by asking Tommie Agee to catch several flyballs in the Bois De Boulogne for the benefit of the delegates to the Paris peace talks.

By the fourth of July, 1970, the Mets had won 81 games and lost none. "Amazing," New Yorkers said. But on the 5th of July, when they had won their 82nd game and everybody else was saying "amazing," one man replied "it's amazing all right — amazingly dull."

That evening, not a single taxi stopped for a fare in the garment district. Next day several thousand people said "the Mets are as dull as the Yankees used to be when they won everything."

"Whatever happened to the Yankees?" several hundred thousand people asked, almost simultaneously. "They're playing at the stadium and they're in last place" was the answer.

Well, we all know what happened — how the oaks and elms were all cut down by vandals, how New Yorkers went back to cheering the mentally disturbed on to suicide, how attendance broke the three million mark at Yankee stadium in 1971 when the "fantastic Yanks" came from last place to win the pennant from an ever obliging Baltimore team, and beat the Mets four straight in the World Series.

Moral: things are bound to get better, but not for very long.

OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed

"I have the green thumb—Stanley has the greasy one."

Dr. Clifford Fawl, Child Guidance Center clinical psychologist, talks with Lancaster County child.

No Disturbed Child Is Denied UF Agency Help

A United Fund agency perhaps less well known than most is the Child Guidance Center, located in Room 312 of the Lincoln Center Building.

The center diagnoses and treats emotionally disturbed Lancaster County children up to their 18th birthday. Children may be referred to the center by their parents, teachers, or physicians.

The children come for appointments during the day and then are returned home or to school in order not to endanger their home orientation.

Fees are assessed on a sliding scale to ensure that no one with a disturbed child, regardless of income, is denied help, according to Dr. Kenneth Hubble, director of the clinic.

The center's services consist of diagnosis, which involves confidential interviews with the family; and appropriate out-patient treatment, which children may undergo singly or in groups, according to their needs. Parents participate in the treatment and are continually counselled to ensure that the child's treatment at home complements his treatment in the clinic. The emphasis, says Dr. Hubble, is on the child's individual personality and needs.

At one time, says Dr. Hubble, the center accumulated backlogs of work which necessitated a waiting list. The center has now eliminated the waiting list, however, enabling parents to obtain immediate help for their children.

The center employes a psychiatrist, a psychiatric social worker, a casework supervisor, and two secretaries, all full-time; along with six part-time and consulting employes. Two or three graduate students from the University of Nebraska School of Social Work are allowed to train with the center each year, giving them practical experience.

Parallels Noted In Education Officials' Ousters

EDITOR'S NOTE: Both Nebraska and Michigan have had their No. 1 education officials forced out of office this year. The author of this dispatch covered both removals and has found many parallels between the two incidents.)

By ROBERT BERG

Lansing, Mich. (UPI) — When Ira Polley resigned as Michigan superintendent of public instruction earlier this month, he became the second state education chief in the country to be forced out of office this year.

The other incident occurred in Nebraska, where Floyd Miller, whose title was commissioner of education, was fired in May.

While there are many differences between Nebraska—where ranchers and farmers hold the balance of political power—and Michigan's predominantly urban society, there are many striking similarities in the removal of the two men from office.

To begin with, both states have eight persons on their state boards of education and both states elect the board members.

In Nebraska, Miller was fired on a 5-3 vote, while in Michigan Polley resigned after learning there would be a 5-3 vote to fire him at the next board meeting.

In both states, the outcome rested on the vote of one man who finally was swayed to vote for the ouster

In Michigan, that man was Edwin Novak of Flint, who decided to vote against Polley only after Polley refused to support the idea of an elective board and criticized the governor for advocating abolition of the board.

Both boards were involved in prolonged public bickering over the status of the two officials before actually disposing of them.

Two Issues

Board action in both cases came with two controversial issues lurking in the background and splitting the members.

In Nebraska issues were school district reorganization—branded as a "Communist plot" by its bitterest opponents—and parochial school aid. Sex education similarly branded by critics as a "Communist plot," and parochial aid were the issues in Michigan.

Michigan observers say the sex education issue really had little, if anything, to do with Polley's ouster, but only served to keep the board in the limelight and embroiled in controversy

The board members who forced Polley out also have said aid to private schools had nothing to do with his ouster.

Part Of Reason

But veteran political observers say the five, all of whom favor parochial aid, knew Polley had no taste for implementing any such program should the Legislature pass it. And they say Polley's feelings about the issue were at least part of the reason four of the board members wanted Polley out.

In both cases, the man forced out had the backing of the governor and in both cases the governor suggested changing the board's structure as a result of the squabbling on the board.

Nebraska Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann asked the Legislature to allow him to appoint the board members. Gov. William G. Milliken has asked his Legislature to abolish the board altogether and allow him to appoint the superintendent.

The Nebraska Legislature adjourned this fall without acting on Tiemann's request.

Backed By Teachers

In both cases, the man forced out had the backing of teachers' organizations. Polley had the support of the Michigan Education Association while the leader in the fight to save Miller was the Nebraska Education Association.

And in both cases, the man named as a "temporary" successor to the deposed leader had a background in vocational education.

The director of the vocational education division in Nebraska, Cecil Stanley, was named as a temporary successor to Miller and still holds the post.

In Michigan, Robert M. Winger, who was head of the state's vocational education division until Polley named him deputy superintendent two years ago, was given a temporary appointment as superintendent. Later, John Porter was given the post permanently, the first Negro to hold such a position in the country.

Supervision and Management Seminar
Will again be presented in Lincoln Oct. 24, 25 & 26

The Dale Carnegie Supervision and Management Seminar is neither theoretical nor idealistic. It aims straight at the development of management skills. Men are trained for supervisory and management jobs they actually can do — and which they will soon be doing — not for some "ivory tower" goal that may be years off for most men.

Motorists' Mini-Quiz

Questions

A — What is the most hazardous time of day and time of year for pedestrians?

B — Do pedestrians have a responsibility in traffic, or does the responsibility rest completely with the drivers?

Answers

A — Dusk and night time and the fall and winter months when there is little daylight. Thirty per cent of Nebraska's pedestrian deaths in 1968 occurred during the last three months.

B — Pedestrians should always cross at crosswalks when available and should never step into the path of a vehicle which is so close the driver can't stop. Remember: At a speed of 35 miles an hour, it takes a driver about 117 feet to stop. Also, pedestrians always should wear something bright and walk on the extreme left of roadway.

Loan Approved For Meat Plant

Washington (AP) — A Small Business Administration loan has ben approved for the Orleans Development Corp. of Orleans, Neb., to build a new meat packing plant, Rep. David Martin announced.

The $67,500 loan will assist the construction of a new custom-kill plant by the Werblow Processing Plant of Orleans.

The loan goes to the development corporation, Martin said, to assist in the total construction cost of $100,000. The development corporation will provide $10,000 and the Republican Valley Bank the remaining $22,500.

Cherry County Added To Food Stamp Program

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department Tuesday designated 57 more localities in which government food stamps will be made available to needy people.

Cherry County in Nebraska is included.

Officials estimated the new programs will serve 20,000 to 25,000 people in 52 counties in Idaho, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New York, Texas and Virginia and five independent cities in Virginia.

The department said the areas either do not have any federal food program for needy families at the present time or else operate limited commodity distribution programs.

Asst. Secretary Richard E. Lyng said the areas announced Tuesday asked to be included in the food stamps program and the department would continue to review funds in an effort to make additional designations.

Under the plan, eligible persons may buy food stamps and receive bonus coupons and trade them for food. Nationally, families receive about $10 worth of food stamps for every $6 they spend for them.

Officials said the latest additions raised to 1,610 the number of counties or cities in the food stamp program which serves about 3.3 million persons.

Taylor Man Chosen Director

Kansas City (AP) —Gene Wiese of Manning, Iowa, was elected president of the American Hereford Association in the annual business meeting held during the American Royal Livestock Show.

Clarence Cross of Colquitt, Ga., was named vice president. Chosen directors were George Schlickau of Haven, Kan., and Alfred Meeks, Taylor, Neb.

Dr. W. T. Berry Jr., executive secretary of the association, told about 1,000 members that the industry should go ahead with plans for expansion because the tax outlook was more favorable.

"We are convinced the final tax reform bill will be fair," Berry said. "It will not discourage the legitimate operator, even though it will discourage the short range 'inner and outer' ".

Berry expained the "inner and outer" included the man who gets into the cattle business purely as a tax gimmick.

Bus Line Gets Okay To Hike Charter Rates

Beaver Bus Lines of Columbus was given State Railway Commission authority Tuesday to increase charter bus rates.

The firm had asked to raise the rates 5 cents per mile to 50 cents per mile and the commission approved the request.

Cattle On Feed Down Slightly

Cattle on feed in Nebraska feedlots at the beginning of this month totaled 1,160,000, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics estimated Tuesday. That's down one per cent from the total a year earlier.

Operations of commercial feeders in the Omaha area were down 14% from last year although up 15% from a month earlier. Cattle on feed in other large lots in the state were up two ver cent from Oct. 1 last year and up 16% from Sept. 1. The farmer-feeder inventory was down two per cent from last year but up 4% for the month.

Nebraska cattle feeders placed 750,000 head on feed during the July-September quarter, or 19% fewer than last year. Marketings during the quarter totaled 785,000 head, compared with 821,000 head during the same period last year.

NU Honors 11 In Nebraska Tree Farm Program

Eleven more state landowners have been cited for participation in the Nebraska tree farm program, the University of Nebraska announced.

They are Don Anderson, Mills; Gilbert W. Swinney, Bassett; Harold Orr, Ainsworth; Frank Stakly, Milford; John O. Jones, Seward; Howard Defrain, Fairbury; Ervin Rafert, Gresham; Leland Chaffin, Burwell; Tom Wake, Taylor; Darrel L. Dean, Plainview, and Andrew Hoffman, Pierce.

The university said the 11 had shown outstanding ability in the management of windbreaks and woodlots.

The awards were first presented in 1959.

Novelist Jack Kerouac, Father Of 'Beat Generation,' Dies At Age 47

St. Petersburg, Fla. (UPI) — Novelist Jack Kerouac, father of the literary "beat generation" of the 1950s and reluctant godfather to today's hippie movement, died early Tuesday of a massive hemorrhage.

Kerouac, 47, was stricken at home Monday and underwent surgery at St. Anthony's Hospital. His third wife, Stella, was at his bedside when he died.

A native of Lowell, Mass., a factory town which he celebrated in his novels, Kerouac had moved here almost a year ago with his invalid mother. Burial will be in Lowell.

Kerouac, a handsome athlete of French-Canadian extraction, soared to fame following publication of his novel "On the Road," in 1957. In all he wrote 18 books, which sold several million copies and were translated in 18 languages.

"I'm only a jolly story teller and have nothing to do with politics or schemes and my only plan is the old Chinese way of the Tao: 'Avoid the authorities,' " he said.

The last of his published novels was "The Vanity of Duluoz," last year. A spokesman for his agent, Sterling Lord, said in New York he had completed two weeks ago a new novel, "Pix," about two Negroes traveling northward from the South.

Kerouac and poets Allen Ginsberg and Gregory Corso became the chiew prophets of the beat movement which flowered in San Francisco and New York. The term "beat generation" was coined by a friend, poet John Clellon Holmes.

Although Kerouac heatedly repudiated any link with the hippies, he was an idol to them. "On the Road" was the Bible for some of them, and "The Dharma Bums" popularized Zen Buddhist mysticism.

Kerouac considered himself the father of "modern spontaneous prose," a kind of stream of consciousness writing he began with "On the Road."

It had taken him three years to write his first and only pre-beat novel, "The Town and the City," signed John Kerouac.

Seven years later he composed "On the Road" in three weeks on an unbroken roll of teletype paper which he fed into his typewriter in a friend's loft apartment in New York City. The last four feet of the novel had to be rewritten, however, when they were eaten by a small black dog.

As a boy, Kerouac's interests were divided between poetry and football. It was football that won him a scholarship to Columbia College, where he joined forces with Ginsberg.

Somali Regime Toppled

Mogadishu, Somalia (AP) — Somalia's government was overthrown Tuesday by a military coup, the first in the nation's nine-year history. A self-styled revolutionary council seized power, apparently without bloodshed, less than 24 hours after the funeral of assassinated President Abdirashid Ali Shermarke.

The Texas-size country on the tip of East Africa was sealed off from the outside world. Airports, seaports and all frontiers were ordered closed, and international communications were interrupted.

The council said in a radio broadcast that "the revolution was staged to save Somalia from the corrupt malpractices of the ruling classes."

Observers in Aden, across the Gulf of Aden from northern Somalia, attributed the coup to popular frustrations that surfaced after the assassination Oct. 15.

They said the parliamentary system, bogged down in traditional and tribal rivalries, had failed to solve unemployment worsened by constant drought in a country mostly dependent on grazing areas for raising livestock.

East Yearbook Wins Award In Annual Contest

The East High School yearbook "Epic" received a first place in the annual Columbia University Scholastic Press Association yearbood critique and contest, it was reported here Tuesday.

The publication won the first-place rating in the junior-senior high school division of 1,001 or more students.

First-place honors also went to the "Westside Shield" of Westside High School in Omaha, the "Purple and Gold" of Grand Island High School and the "Milestone" of Norfolk Senior High School, competing in three different student divisions.

The Weeping Water High School "Warrior" took a second place in the junior-senior high division with 1,000 or fewer students, and the Scribner Public School "Trojan" took a third place in the senior division with 601-900 students.

Damages Sought In 1968 Mishap

A $50,000 damage suit has been filed in Lancaster District Court by Frank J. Spilinek in connection with a Sept. 26, 1968, car-pedestrian accident.

The plaintiff alleges negligence on the part of the defendant, Everett F. Rieflin, when a car driven by Rieflin struck the plaintiff at 11th and M.

The plaintiff alleges the defendant was negligent in that he was traveling at excessive speed, failed to maintain proper lookout or control and failed to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian.

Spilinek alleges as a result of the accident he suffered multiple injuries to the spine, muscles, tendons, ligaments and fracture of vertebrae, bruises and abrasions.

Interpol Delegates On Board Jetliner Hijacked To Havana

Miami (AP) — A Pan American Airways jetliner with 36 persons aboard — including two Peruvian officials returning home from submitting a resolution on hijackings to Interpol — was hijacked to Havana Tuesday while en route from Mexico City to Miami.

Pan American officials said the plane was commandeered by a shaky gun-waving youth as the pilot began the descent at Merida, Mexico.

The Boeing 720 jet made the unscheduled trip to the Communist island without incident and continued on to Miami safely from Havana.

Youth Identified

Included among the 27 passengers was Florida State Sen. Tom Slade, R-Jacksonville, who said the hijacker identified himself as Hank Shorn, 17, of Detroit.

Slade said the youth was shaking all over, but was amazingly chatty. "He was just a mixed up kid who said he had an oppressed childhood," Slade said.

The state legislator said the boy showed him a photograph of himself with shoulder-length hair and a beard. "He said he cleaned himself up so he could board the plane unnoticed," Slade said.

Interpol Delegates

Also among the kidnaped passengers were two Peruvians identified as delegates to Interpol's general assembly session which closed in Mexico City Saturday.

The men, Juan Barletti and Artiboro Mejia, were reported to have submitted a resolution on airplane hijacking that provided special guards be assigned to airliners.

Barletti and Mejia were questioned by federal agents upon landing in Miami and refused to see newsmen.

Slade said the hijacker "could have been disarmed very easily. He shook like a leaf and switched his gun hand often. I was going to disarm him, but I discovered we were descending over Havana at that time."

Father, Mother Of Puppies Have Grafted Hearts

Paris (AP) — Nounouche, a dog of unknown age and uncertain breed, gave birth to four puppies last week at the Broussais hospital.

The puppy births were at the hospital because Nounouche has had a transplanted heart for two years and is under close observation. The father, whose name was not given, also has a transplanted heart.

The transplants were done by Prof. Jean-Paul Cachera, a member of the team headed by Prof. Charles Dubost that successfully transplanted a heart to the Rev. Charles Boulogne, Father Boulogne died last Friday, 17 months and five days after he got a new heart.

The dogs with transplanted hearts are given regular doses of antirejection serum and immunologists are trying to find out why the serum seems to be more effective in dogs than in men.

Many Stay On

Jerusalem (AP) — Yitzhak Pundak, assistant labor minister, told a news conference that despite guerrilla organization threats, 18,000 Arabs from occupied areas of Jordan are working in Israel, mostly farming and building, and 10,000 are on waiting lists for work.

Syria Closes Border In Spat With Lebanon

Damascus, Syria (AP) — Syria closed its 150-mile border with Lebanon Tuesday night and threatened "firmer and more effective measures" to stop Lebanese army attacks on Palestinian guerrillas.

These irregulars use neighboring Arab countries as bases for attacks on Israel.

The action by Syria's interior ministry coincided with a report from the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) that an estimated 2,000 Lebanese troops in tanks attacked three PLO guerrilla bases near the Israeli border in southern Lebanon.

PLO said 14 guerrillas and five Lebanese civilians were killed, 25 guerrillas were wounded and between 30 and 40 were arrested. The statement added that Al Fatah guerrilla units in the encircled villages of Kafr Shams, Majdal Salam and Al Shakra were being pounded by both Lebanese and Israeli artillery.

The Lebanese - guerrilla Syrian conflicts and counterconflicts represented an unprecedented turn in the 21-year-old Middle East hostilities.

The political bureau of Syria's ruling socialist Baath Party said, "Lebanese authorities must be made to call off their measures against the Palestinian guerrillas."

It described Lebanese army attacks on the guerrilla bases as part of "a plot by U.S. imperialism and Zionism to crush the Palestinian revolution."

El Quneitra, Israeli-occupied Syria (AP) — Israel established a law court Tuesday on the Syrian Golan Heights, which the Israelis captured in the Middle East war of June 5-10, 1967.

The event was regarded as a major step toward annexation of the strategic plateau.

Justice Minister Ya'acov Shimshon Shapiro said Israel would see to it "that peace comes and the Golan Heights will flourish for eternity under Israeli law."

Police Search For Amateur Commentator

Wilmington, Del. (AP) — When police reported over the police network that a stolen car had been recovered, a voice not of the official variety came on the air.

"Good work, Sarge," the phantom voice said. "Glad to hear you're on the job."

"We're always on the job," the radio sergeant replied.

And indeed Wilmington police are on the job trying to track down the thief who stole a $700 handie-talkie radio from a patrol car last week and has since been filling their police airwaves with profanities and comments.

Signing off at night, the voice entertains the policemen by whistling a slightly off key version of "Taps."

Descendants Of Shores Family Are Being Sought

An attempt to locate descendants of the late W. Henry and Maude M. Shores (or Shoars) is underway in three midwestern states, Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska.

Surviving family members are sought to claim a $12,000 estate, according to Gordon L. Cox of Tucson, Ariz., who's job it is to locate missing relatives of the family. Cox said the search is also directed to people in the area who can supply information concerning the family.

HE'S A REFUGEE AGAIN

Eleven-month-old Jimmy Cheramie of Grand Isle, La., was back in a refugee center at Thibodaux, La., Tuesday for the second time in two months. Louisianans moved inland to avoid the threat of Hurricane Laurie. Jimmy's family had moved to the shelter in August when Hurricane Camille struck.

Hurricane Is Threat To Florida

New Orleans (AP) — Hurricane Laurie, curving through the Gulf of Mexico with winds of 110 miles an hour, headed toward Florida's west coast Tuesday night.

Dr. Robert Simpson, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, said Laurie probably would rage out of the Gulf of Mexico onto Florida's white sand beaches sometime Thursday. Nobody knew exactly where.

"It's too early to zero in on this now but we'll soon be asking people on Florida's west coast to maintain a hurricane watch," he said.

The New Orleans weather bureau, which tracked Laurie's erratic path for two days, lifted the hurricane watch from Galveston, Tex., to Pensacola, Fla. The watch remained in effect from Pensacola to Apalachicola, Fla.

In her path, reported disabled and adrift in heavy seas, was the 67-foot fishing trawler Dell G out of Mobile with a crew of seven. The Coast Guard said the boat was about 275 miles south of Mobile.

A Coast Guard plane was dispatched to pinpoint the trawler's location and see what could be done.

Washington (AP) — Opponents of a proposed extension of the west front of the Capitol, at a currently estimate cost of $45 million, scored a victory in the Senate Tuesday.

By a vote of 53 to 24, the Senate adopted an amendment of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., eliminating from a legislative appropriation bill $1.75 million to draw up plans and specifications for the project.

Proxmire's amendment left untouched $250,000 included in the bill for a National Park Service study of the cost and feasibility of restoring the west wall of the Capitol building.

LAP Effectiveness In Helping Poor Is Criticized

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Several Lincoln Action Program board members, representatives of various local agencies and community organizers Tuesday attacked the effectiveness of the LAP program in helping the poverty-stricken.

At a meeting called by the Lancaster County Board for a full report on LAP's progress during its three year's existence, several persons charged the program with lack of direction and criticized the training of persons sent out to work with poverty-stricken people.

Jerilyn Johns, one of 11 board members comprising the one-third representation from the low-income group, said that the program was "over my head."

She said during most of the meetings she "didn't know whether I was coming or going."

Mrs. Jeanine Kessler, who worked for LAP from March 1967, to May 1969 as a community organizer, said she lost her job because "I said what I felt and what I believed."

She said she felt there was much that "LAP could be doing that isn't being done." The program needs "to be cleaned up," she said.

Mrs. Kessler cited the case of a family which lives near her home. She said the family should be helped but has had no help whatsoever.

LAP 'Gives Up'

She said she tried to work with the family in order to get help for them but said they are the type of people LAP gives up on. "If they were really doing the job they wouldn't give up on them," she said.

She commended the Head Start and Neighborhood Youth Corps projects, saying that her child had been helped greatly by Head Start.

Pastor Jerry G. Dunn, of the City Mission and a LAP board member, said community organizers need to understand what they are to do and need to be taught how to organize a community.

He said low-income people need direction which "Art May admitted was desperately needed." May is the director of LAP.

Pastor Dunn said when new assistant director William Simons was hired, he asked Simons what he planned to do to instruct the poor about existing agencies.

"He told me this was not His responsibility . . ," Pastor Dunn said.

Know Nothing

Pastor Dunn emphasized that there may be good programs which are already in existence about which poor people know nothing.

He said his impression as a board member was that one gets a sense of destruction at LAP.

Mrs. Hulda Roper, Lincoln policewoman who has served on the LAP board since it was formed, said few low-income families are being reached.

She said there is a "great deal wrong" with the selection of staff. Because of the lack of effectiveness of the program, she added, the "public does not have confidence in LAP."

She pointed to what she described as the lack of training of neighborhood aides, "who don't know what they're supposed to do."

'Running In Circles'

Lancaster County Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert said that in his contact with community organizers, most have indicated they are "running around in circles not knowing what their purpose is."

"There is lack of communication and lack of administration from the top down to the bottom," he said.

John Shaw, a board member representing the low-income segment, said, "We've done nothing for the poor people of Lincoln."

He said the purpose of LAP is to lift people out of poverty. "I defy anyone to come up with two names" of families which have actually been lifted out of poverty by the program, Shaw added.

Need Help Now

The poverty-stricken need help now, Shaw said, not in the future after LAP has devised its plans.

"We have postponed, tabled and deferred for 3½ years," he said.

Shaw also suggested that the board membership should include more than the present one-third representation from low-income families.

Out of the present 11 on the board, there are "two or three who are articulate and will speak up and say what they think," he said.

Mrs. Barbara Fox, president of the Nebraska Board of Houses of Hope, told the commissioners that she was "surprised" at the Lincoln League of Women Voters' report that alcoholism is not involved in poverty.

She said that drugs and alcohol do cause poverty and that there is no help extended to the Lincoln family of the alcoholic.

After explanation of the agencies and expenses of the LAP program by LAP Director May and an explanation of the budget by Board Treasurer T. O. Haas, board member Carol Siegmann outlined the work of the poverty people staff in connection with referral.

She said these people refer people to agencies and acquaint them with LAP goals.

The most important aspect of the program, according to Mrs. Siegmann, is its "broad-based support" which "provides us with a varied way of looking at problems and gives all facets of the community a chance to sit down and face each other."

Burned Pen Inmate Said 'Sprayed'

An inmate of the State Penitentiary who suffered burns over 25% of his body Monday was probably sprayed by an inflammable liquid, according to Lt. L. V. Parks of the State Patrol criminal investigation division.

Parks said Tuesday it will be two or three days before investigators can talk with the victim, Jesse Lee Livingston, 25, of Omaha, who was reported in critical condition at St. Elizabeth Health Center.

The inflammable mixture could have been ignited by a lighted cigarette, Parks said.

He said that lab tests are being conducted to determine what the liquid was.

Prison officials said Livingston was alone in his cell at the time of the fire, in which he suffered first and second degree burns.

Investigators have interviewed several inmates. Parks said, but he indicated the person responsible for the fire probably won't be revealed until the victim can talk.

Livingston is serving a six-year term on a rape conviction after being sentenced in 1965.

Spokesman Claims Decrease In Automotive Air Pollution

By Associated Press

A spokesman for the petroleum industry in Nebraska says substantial progress has been made in reducing automotive air pollution, and research now under way promises even greater improvement.

The statement by Charles E. Chace, executive director of the Nebraska Petroleum Council, was prompted by the fact this week is "Cleaner Air Week."

Chace said total emissions of carbon monoxide and gasoline fumes from the nation's motor vehicles have been on the downgrade for the past two years due to the installation of increasingly effective control devices on new automobiles.

"As older cars with no control equipment are phased out, the overall reductions will continue," he said. "Intensive research, sponsored by industries and government, offers every reason for confidence that the automobile will soon cease to be a major factor in the nation's air pollution problem."

Cleaner Air Week, now in its 21st year, is sponsored by the non-profit Air Pollution Control Association.

NU President Plans No Directives On Classes Canceled For Protests

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska president's office will not issue any directives about professors canceling classes to participate in moratoriums on Vietnam, Dr. Joseph Soshnik declared to students Tuesday.

But NU professors who cancel their classes to participate in such activities have a "responsibility to make sure that alternatives are provided," the president added.

Soshnik made the comments at a forum here arranged by the NU Innocents Society. He and Dr. G. Robert Ross, vice chancellor for student affairs, fielded questions on a variety of topics regarding university policies for 1½ hours in a session attended by as many as 200 students at one time.

Soshnik, responding to a question by a student who said his "rights had been denied" when a professor canceled one of his classes, said it would be a "rare case" if a class is not made up.

Acted Appropriately

The president, who noted that the student had acted appropriately in protesting the lack of class to the professor, department chairman and dean of faculties, said his office "starts with the proposition that faculty act responsibly."

He added, "I can't believe that faculty members acting irresponsibly won't have it called to their attention by their department chairmen."

"My office won't dictate to a professor how to reach educational objectives," Soshnik asserted. "But students are entitled to have complete coverage of courses in which they are registered."

He stressed that the alternatives for canceled classes should be "decided with the students."

Not Institutional

Asked his opinion about the student boycott to protest the war in Vietnam, Soshnik pointed out that he felt the student expression of opinion is a "matter of individual conscience, not an institutional manner." Although asked, Soshnik declined to give his personal opinion of the moratorium.

The president drew a "well said" compliment from a student who asked about controversial speakers on campus when Soshnik said his office "won't take any action to influence students bringing any speaker to the campus."

Several questions dealt with students' concern about university policies on reporting law violators to legal authorities and on coed visitation.

Ross said he favors "reporting all law violations" by students. University staff members — "as are all individuals" — are required to report allegedly felonious acts, he pointed out.

'Must Judge'

Even though the university has a policy that staff members respect confidences conveyed by students, each staff member must judge "as an individual" whether he will report knowledge of a felonious act, Ross explained.

The university is reporting all law violations to city police except minor - in - possession - of - alcohol offenses because students last spring asked for more time to consider that matter, Ross said.

No answer was given to an inquiry about university disciplinary powers regarding violations of law that are handled by legal authorities.

Asks For Reports

Ross told the students that the institution has policies on the status of suspended students, search of student rooms and other housing regulations and urged that specific cases in which the policies apparently are not being followed be reported to him.

General answers were given to one student's questions about NU forcing Malone Center area residents out of their homes for campus expansion and about black studies programs at NU. Told that black studies were incorporated into several courses available to freshmen, the student protested that "white teachers are teaching them."

Soshnik informed another student that the division of the College of Engineering and Architecture was a question of "when it can be accomplished."

He said that at the time some senators were approached at the last legislative session to introduce a bill creating a new college, "adequate preparation for the separation had not been done."

Head Of Harvard Is New President Of College Group

New York (UPI) — Nathan M. Pusey, president of Harvard University, succeeds David D. Henry of the University of Illinois Wednesday as president of the Association of American Universities.

Pusey was a central figure last spring in the student turmoil at Harvard, the nation's oldest university, and a small number of faculty members called for his resignation because of his handling of the unrest. He has been president of Harvard since 1956.

The association included 44 American and Canadian universities prominent in graduate and professional education.

JOHN N. MITCHELL

Tough Bail Law Asked By Mitchell

Washington (UPI) — Attorney General John N. Mitchell asked Congress Tuesday to approve legislation that would deny bail to potentially dangerous persons awaiting trial on federal charges. He said such suspects were a major cause of rising crime rates.

"I believe that the pretrial release of potentially dangerous defendants constitutes one of the most serious factors in the present crime rate," Mitchell told a House judiciary subcommittee holding hearings on amendments to the Bail Reform Act of 1966.

Under the plan proposed by the Nixon administration, judges would be empowered to refuse bail to suspects they believe might commit another crime while awaiting trial. Present law provides that except for capital cases, federal bail may only be denied on grounds the suspect is unlikely to appear for trial.

Former Air Base Chief Gets Airport Post

A former Lincoln Air Force Base commander has been hired as operations manager of the Lincoln Municipal Airport.

Airport Authority Executive Director Rolland Harr announced the appointment of Ervin Wursten at a meeting of the Airport Authority.

Wursten was base commander in 1953-54.

Wursten, now stationed at Barksdale AFB, La., will retire early to assume the post on Nov. 10.

Harr said that the new operations manager, who will also serve as assistant to the director, is thoroughly familiar with the airport.

In other action, the Airport Authority selected the architectural firm of Davis and Clark as architect for the proposed $3.5 million terminal.

The board members also decided to retain the airport consulting firm of Ralph Burke and Associates, Chicago, who prepared the master plan for the airport development, to work with the architect.

The next step will be for the architect to find out from those who plan to lease space in the new terminal what their space requirements will be.

Board Chairman Robert Phillips said the new terminal building would take one to two years to complete once construction is started.

Board members said they were unsure when construction would start, noting that it is not feasible now to issue a bond to finance the project because of the unfavorable bond market.

Commenting on Lincoln's air service case before the Civil Aeronautics Board, Chauncey Barney, legal counsel for the Airport Authority, said the most favorable decision that could be issued by the board would be the granting of air service to both Frontier and Ozark airlines for routes to St. Louis, Chicago and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Other board action:

—Approved new Blue Cross-Blue Shield and life insurance participation plans.
—Approved new advertising program on Lincoln Air Park West with Swanson, Sinkey & Ellis.
—Approved lease of building to Bankers Life Insurance Co.

Complete List Of Bertrand Cargo Slated

Missouri Valley, Iowa (AP) — A complete manifest listing nearly two million items taken from the old river steamer Bertrand will be completed this year.

The river boat, unearthed this summer from an old Missouri River channel where it sank a century ago, has yielded a valuable store of artifacts.

Jerry Petsche of Lincoln, National Park Service archaeologist at the Bertrand site, which is located at the DeSoto Bend National Wildlife Refuge west of here, said a list of some 500,000 items was prepared after 33% of the cargo had been removed.

Dr. W. D. Logan of Omaha, regional archeologist, said the items, which are to make up a major part of a historical museum, will show how pioneers ate, dressed and lived in the years before the railroad when river navigation was the principal supplier of the west.

Interior Secretary Hickel said preservation of the items will be given top priority and a supplemental budget will be asked of Congress to implement it.

Fashions—Simply Sophisticated

By NELLE GREER
The Lincoln Star Women's Editor

Los Angeles — If you are not too tall, too short, too thin or too fat the year 1970 your year, according to the fashion picture that is being presented this week by the California Fashion Creators in Los Angeles. These are double duty fashions — since they not only enjoy traveling to winter resort spots, but are equally eager to greet a Nebraska spring.

It is amazing how sophistication and simplicity go hand in hand in the fashion parade, and it is equally amazing what designers can do with cottons, linen and lace combinations, safari jackets and flaring skirts. And, of course, there are knits, knits and more knits in plain or printed patterns.

In this moon-landing era the knits, or at least some of them, are done by computer — it seems that you put the information of the pattern desired on a punch card which goes into the electronics machine which in turn produces the fabric. The machine, called Morotronics, originated in Germany but we are told that there are several in the United States at this time.

The Edith Flagg collection included some most attractive computerized knits, soft, flexible and light weight. One of the most pleasing was a double-breasted coat-dress which, at first glance, appeared to be a print. But it wasn't. It was a "Moratronics" knit.

This designer does marvelous things with Schiffli embroidery which seems to be very dear to her heart judging from the numerous times it was used in her spring and resort wear line. The embroidery was particularly effective in a costume suit of soft, pastel green. The hem-length coat, all Schiffli, was touched with a muted pink and was worn over a dress of the solid green tone.

Black, says this designer, is an important color for spring and for resort wear and she proved it by showing it in a costume suit. The finger-tip coat, touched with white, was worn over a straight, square-necked dress. Black, however, merely accented her collection of pastels, the mint tones, liac, and shades of yellow.

An applause winner was the maxi-coat in gold lame — another of her computerized fabrics. It was beautifully fitted at the waist, the sleeves were narrow and the collar high.

Jim Church, a native of Indiana where he attended the University of Indiana, designs for Raymond Faun, Ltd., and the brand is "California Girl." Here again knits took the spotlight although a sure winner is bound to be the all-cotton costume which featured a double-faced jacket in navy blue which was worn over a two-piece, plain top and pleated skirt. There were many costume suits in the "California Girl" collection, most of them with hem-length coats. One of the most outstanding was a sleeveless coat costume worn with a long-sleeved shirt dress. The coat was in a silky, knitted tweed, in an oatmeal shade, while the dress, unpatterned, was in matching tone. We liked the navy blue knit skimmer belted in white, and the navy blue knit patterened and spaced with white, horizontal stripes.

The Rothschild collection had much to offer in its assortment of fashions. Rothschild has gone in for the tobacco and what he calls the 'salt-water taffy shades' — those pastel yellows, pinks, and off-whites. He showed a double-breasted coat dress, and in the camel shade, it was terrific. The dress fitted the model beautifully, and its white braid trim made it outstanding.

Rothschild goes back to the 40's in the fagoting that was used extravagantly on a two-piece yellow frosk, and has a nostalgic touch again in his simple, coin-dotted frocks — the type every woman will want in her spring wardrobe.

The Tuesday morning showings were labeled "Sportswear," and the subtitles were "Resort Closet," "Cruise and Spring," "Dresses, Separates, At Home Wear." The three collections lived up to their titles and subtitles.

Were it not for the hooded caftan in a canvas print, worn over a long-sleeved romper suit with a v neck, we easily could skip the opener — Charm of Hollywood — junior sportswear. Granted the collection mainly was for the teen population, but we seriously doubt that the teenagers back in our old hometown would be interested. terested.

So we'll go on to Alex Colman. The Colman collection included a little of everything — the jumpsuit, plain and fancy; the pant-dress, beach clothes and a great variety of combinations of two and three-piece fun apparel for the suntan set.

One of the outstanding numbers was a white, double-breasted maxi cardigan coat designed with a high back pleat and belted. It was most attractive and was worn over a white, streamliner twill jump suit. Colman used cotton-satin fabric for many of his sports clothes, and also to his credit were fascinating color combinations. In the show were numerous 35-inch, long-sleeved jackets in a variety of nylon prints. These did double duty since they could be worn with long pants and shorts or, without shorts or pants, as a dress.

For the patio lounger who might be expecting guests Colman did a sleeveless jacket which could remain sleeveless or could be worn with an arnel knit long-sleeved shirt. Either or both of these, plus pull-on straight-leg pants, or a pleated skirt, would fit into almost any patio picture, especially since the outfit could be coordinated as to colors which were red, navy and ivory.

The star of the morning was Eddy George whose collection charmed everyone. Mr. George opened his show with the statement that he "wouldn't go so fast to say that pants were going out, but he would say that skirts were definitely coming in." His collection included both pants and skirts, but we hasten to add that the skirts seemed to be included in the couture section of his show, and beautiful this section was. We're still drooling over a hostess costume composed of a crepe hostess skirt — long — a chiffon, long-sleeved blouse, softly ruffled at the throat, and a brocade maxi coat, all in the mango shade. Also exciting was the gold lame tunic dress worn with charcoal gray velveteen pants, and we were entranced with the polyester chiffon shirt, with scarf, worn with a long, pleated hostess skirt.

Eddy George showed jumpsuits, many of them. One most attractive one was a border print, with wide lapels and a self belt. He showed a zebra patch print cotton maxi shirt over a bra and bikini pants; cotton faille coats over bras and shorts with now and then a voile shirt completing the ensemble, and of course he did beautiful print tunics to be worn over shirts and bikinis.

There was a choice of fabrics in the Eddy George collection. He employed silk linens, and Italian silks. The designer roams the world for his materials and his print patterns. In one instance he saw some material in Rome, bought a yard of it, and hied himself off to Japan where the screen was made — then back to the states for the manufacturing.

Wedding Plans, Parties Announced

Naming the members of her bridal party this morning is Miss Pamela Marie Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Price, whose marriage to Richard F. Fisher will be an event of Saturday, Nov. 1.

Mrs. Randy Stone will attend her sister as matron of honor, and the bridesmaid will be Mr. Fisher's sister, Miss Mary Ellen Fisher. The bridesmatrons will be Mrs. Lebsack, also a sister of the bridegroom. The flower girls will be Miss Lorri Price, sister of the bride-elect, and her fiance's sister, Miss Malissa Fisher.

Opening lead — three of hearts.

Declarer is not actually expected to work miracles and manufacture tricks that don't exist, but there are nevertheless times when he can give a pretty good imitation of this.

It is well known that many so-called feats of magic are accomplished because the hand is quicker than the eye. Many contracts can similarly be made by applying the same principle at the card table.

South was in six spades and saw that there was a danger of losing two club tricks to go down one. The problem was how to combat this danger.

His solution was simple enough. He won the heart lead with the ace and cashed the ace of clubs, both defenders following the low. It was only trick two, but South's feat of magic was already accomplished. He could no longer be defeated. The hand was quicker than the eye.

After ruffing a heart, declarer drew two rounds of trumps, ruffed the jack of hearts, cashed three diamonds, and exited with a club.

East won with the king and had to return a red card. South ruffed, discarding dummy's last club, and then trumped a club in dummy to bring home the slam. His only loser was a club.

It is true that East could have defeated the contract by dropping his king of clubs on the ace. South would have lost two club tricks in that case. But the early club play caught East off guard and settled the issue beyond repair.

Let's say that South had won the opening heart, ruffed a heart, and proceeded to eliminate diamonds and hearts in prepartion for an endplay. When he cashed the ace of clubs, East would have been in much better position to drop the king on the ace to avoid the endplay.

When you are trying to steal a contract, you must attempt to disguise your intentions so as not to telegraph them to the opponents.

Suburbia Entertains Visitors

Birthdays and autumn's favorite pastime, football games, have brought a variety of interesting guests to suburbia during the last few days — so without wasting more time, we'll start right in with our news.

The first bit of news we wish to share involves the Nebraska-Kansas game last weekend. Country Club Terrace residents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Noren, were host and hostess to members of Mrs. Noren's family Saturday for the day and post-game dinner. Their guests, all of whom arrived on Saturday, included Mrs. Noren's father, Dr. R. H. Herse of Laurel; her aunt, Mrs. Irene Goeres of Sioux Falls, S.D.; and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Herse and family of Omaha.

Mr. and Mrs. Herse and their children returned home to Omaha Saturday evening, but Mrs. Noren's father and aunt remained in Lincoln for the weekend returning to their homes on Monday.

On Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Noren welcomed as their guest Miss Sherry Koch of Sioux Falls, S.D., who took time off from her studies at the University of Nebraska, where she is a freshman to visit with her grandmother, Mrs. Geoeres, and other members of her family.

Incidentally, Dr. Herse — although he enjoys visiting with family members — is first and foremost a Nebraska football fan and plans to be back in the city on Thursday in plenty of time for the Nebraska - Oklahoma State game.

Speaking of football fans, Mr. and Mrs. George Lebedz and their son, Steve, of North Platte, will arrive on Thursday for a short visit with family members AND for the Lincoln High-North Platte game on Thursday evening.

The out-of-town visitors will be the houseguests of Mrs. Lebedz's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Leatherman in Clifford Place — and the game, incidentally, will hold more than casual interest for the family as Steve is a member of the North Platte team.

Eastborough residents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stich and their daughter, Dawn, plan to be out of town on Sunday, when they will join family members for a multiple birthday celebration at the home of Mrs. Stich's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Spoerl, whose new home in on Rt. 1, Lincoln.

The guests of honor will be Mr. and Mrs. Spoerl's children, Becky, who became a four-year-old on Monday, Oct. 20, Toby, who celebrates his sixth birthday anniversary on Thursday, and Mr. and Mrs. Stich's daughter, Dawn, who will observe her first birthday anniversary on Sunday.

Joining in the festivities will be Mrs. Stich's and Mrs. Spoerl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wiechert, and Mr. Stich's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stich of Dorchester.

Abby: maybe a mental "hang-up"

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter in your column from the woman who did not find any physical satisfiaction in her marriage. That has been my problem for 25 years.

I talked with two doctors. One told me that I was expecting too much and had been reading too many love stories. The other (a woman doctor) told me that very few women had it any better — they just "pretended" most of their lives.

My man is one of the loving king, but I have been "pretending" all my married life. Is there no hope for me?

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: The first doctor was off base, but the second doctor (if statistics can be believed) was not. You need to see a third doctor — one who specializes in unlocking doors of minds where "hangups" have been stores. This may be an oversimplification, but the reason most women are unable to enjoy marital relations is because as young girls they've been told that sex is a "no no." And so it is . . . forever.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of the "no-bra" look?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: It's a good way for some women to get everything off their chest. For others, it's a flop.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

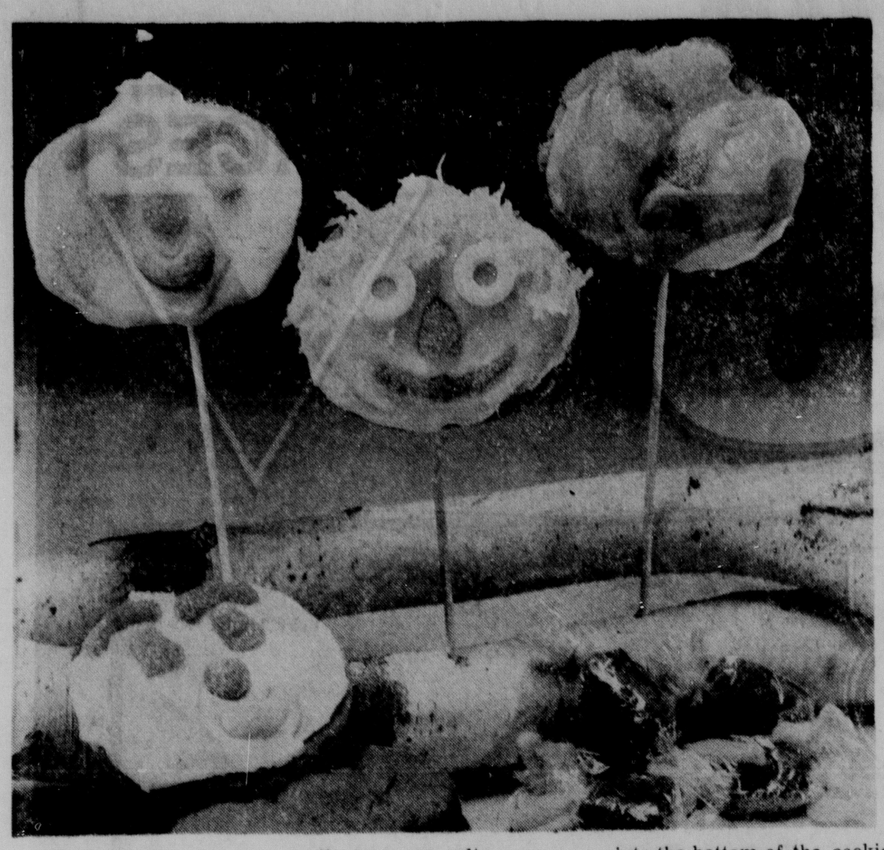
Forecast For Halloween Fun



For those youngsters too small to go "trick or treating," hold a special Halloween party — right in the kitchen — and at the same time prepare for those "ghosts and spooks" who will be ringing your front doorbell.

Early on "party" day, prepare the dough for Molasses Pumpkin Cookie Pops and keep it refrigerated until time for the youngsters to frost and decorate the cooky-lollipops.

Supply assorted candies and nuts so the children can make the funny faces — and while waiting for the cookies to bake and cool, give them the fun of an old-fashioned molasses taffy pull. However, be sure that all the little fingers are well coated with butter during the taffy pull — it makes the candy creamy and easier to pull back and forth.

MOLASSES PUMPKIN COOKIES

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup light molasses
1 cup cooked mashed pumpkin, either fresh or canned
4½ cups flour, sifted
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground ginger
Orange icing (recipe below)
Cashew nuts, candy pieces for decorating

Cream butter and sugar together in a mixing bowl. Blend in light molasses and then pumpkin. Sift together flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, cloves and ginger onto a waxed sheet of paper. Gradually add flour mixture to other ingredients. Blend well at low speed with an electric mixer.

Divide the dough into four equal parts; chill for 30 minutes. Knead each dough section into a smooth ball on a floured board. Roll out to ¼" thickness on a floured pastry cloth. (Keep remaining dough in refrigerator until ready to use.) Cut with pumpkin cookie cutter or, with a sharp knife, cut around cardboard cutout of your design. Place on a greased cookie sheet. Bake cookies in a preheated moderate 375 degrees F. oven for 8 to 10 minutes. Cook on a rack.

When cool, press wooden skewers or ice cream sticks into the bottom of the cookie to form cookie pop. Do this step carefully as it is important not to shatter the cookies. Frost with orange icing. Decorate face, using cashew nuts for mouths, candy circles for eyes, etc.

Makes 5 dozen cookies.

ORANGE ICING

1 lb. package confectioners sugar, sifted
3 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate
3 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon red food coloring
¾ teaspoon yellow food coloring

Mix liquid ingredients with the sugar. Makes enough to frost 5 dozen cookies.

ORANGE MOLASSES TAFFY

1½ cups sugar
1 cup light molasses
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon orange extract

Combine sugar, light molasses, salt and heavy cream in a heavy skillet. Stirring, bring mixture to a boil over highest heat. Reduce heat to medium; continue boiling until the mixture reaches 265 degrees F. on a candy thermometer or until a small amount forms a firm ball when dropped in cold water (about 14 minutes).

Remove molasses mixture from the heat; add 2 tablespoons butter and sprinkle with baking soda and orange extract. Stir until well blended and butter has melted.

Pour onto a large, well-buttered platter. Cool for 5 minutes. Turn edges of taffy into center with a well buttered spatulda. Continue cooling for 15 minutes. With buttered spatula, divide taffy into 4 pieces. Grease fingers well with butter. Roll taffy sections into balls with fingers. Pull, fold back and squeeze taffy until it turns a golden color and becomes hard to pull.

Pull taffy into long strands, about ½ inch in diameter. Cut into bite-sized pieces with buttered kitchen shears, quickly. Wrap pieces individually in small squares of cellophane wrap or waxed paper; tie ends with orange yarn, if desired. Taffy may also be rolled in confectioner's sugar. The taffy should be stored in a closed tin.

Makes about 60 pieces.

Pinwheel Appetizers

The smart hostess always has a few quick party tricks up her sleeve to surprise her guests.

Separate biscuits from 1 package enriched refrigerator biscuit dough. Roll out each biscuit to a 4 by 5-inch rectangle. Cover rectangle with 1 teaspoon each catsup and grated Parmesan cheese. Sprinkle with oregano or caraway seeds; top with chopped mushrooms.

Starting at short end, roll up dough jelly-roll fashion. Cut into 1-inch slices. Place pinwheels, sliced side up, on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in preheated oven 400 degrees for 9 to 11 minutes, or until golden brown. Makes about 40 appetizers.

Delicious Half-Baked Hash

Easy, delicious Half-Baked Hash can be the basis for an oven meal that will help you break that "grab a sandwich" habit.

To complete an oven meal, pop in a spicy Apple Betty, made magically from canned apple pie filling. A fruit salad, brown-and-serve rolls and cold milk could complete the meal—and don't forget a generous scoop of ice cream with the Apple Betty!

HALF-BAKED HASH

2 medium acorn squash
Salt and pepper
⅓ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 can (15 or 15½ oz.) corned beef hash
1 teaspoon instant onion flakes

Wash squash. Cut in half lengthwise; scoop out seeds and stringy membrane. Place, cut side down, in a shallow baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 40 minutes, or until squash is tender when tested with fork.

Turn cut side up; season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle sugar over inside and over cut edges. Turn hash into a small mixing bowl; break up into chunks with fork; add onion flakes, tossing to combine. Fill squash halves with hash. Bake 15 to 20 minutes longer, or until hash is thoroughly heated and nicely browned.

Makes 4 servings.

City Warned Odors Would Be Problem

Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. plant manager Alan Colby said Tuesday Lincoln city officials were warned a year ago that there would be odor problems in the Havelock area if wastes from ADM's soybean refinery process flowed into the city's sewage treatment lagoon.

Colby said he had advised that the wastes not go to the lagoon since lagoons are not designed to handle such wastes.

Speaking to the Air Pollution Advisory Board, Colby, who is a member of the board, said his firm has offered to spend $35,000 to reroute the wastes to the city sewage treatment plant at 27th and Theresa.

Colby said he does not know what more his plant could do to eliminate the pungent odors first noticed when the refinery went into operation several weeks ago.

He pointed out that the oily waste is pretreated at the plant before flowing into the city's sanitary sewer system.

Equivalent To 25,000

Colby also said that the refinery wastes are equivalent to adding 25,000 persons to the treatment system," noting that the population equivalency count far exceeds what the lagoon can handle.

Public Utilities Director Lee Blocker said Tuesday that he "had expected problems to occur because the wastes would flow into the lagoon."

"But the foul odor problem is much worse than what was anticipated," Blocker said.

He said it would have been desirable to reroute the wastes to the Theresa St. treatment plant, but he said plans to reroute the wastes to the plant were discarded because the plants is already overloaded.

Other Possibilities

Blocker said other possibilities considered — but abandoned — were rerouting part of the wastes to the treatment plant or expanding the lagoon (a stopgap measure for handling wastes) through the addition of an aerated section.

He said that bacteria which thrives on oxygen in the lagoon is used for treating wastes.

"However, the oily waste produces a film covering the lagoon," Blocker said, noting the film prevents sunlight from getting to the bacteria and stills the wind agitation of the water, which he said are necessary for the bacteria to live.

The public utilities director said a different kind of bacteria which thrives on the lack of oxygen adequately treats the sewage but also produces odors.

Blocker said this type of treatment is used at the treatment plant. He said the pungent odors there are eliminated through burning.

Carbon Monoxide

The Air Pollution Advisory Board members also discussed the effect of vehicular emission of carbon monoxide on the city's air pollution problem.

Air Pollution Control Officer Les Sanger told board members a limited sampling for carbon monoxide at four busy intersections on O St. revealed the amount is below the problem level.

Sanger said 100 parts per million is considered the amount necessary to cause headaches and slow down the response.

Samples of carbon monoxide collected indicated an amount of 20 parts per million, Sanger said.

SAM MASSELL . . . in lead for mayor.

Liberal Leads Atlanta Race

Atlanta, Ga. (AP) — Liberal Democrat Sam Massell overcame an early deficit and appeared headed for victory over Republican Rodney Cook with more than three-fourths of the votes reported in Tuesday's runoff election for mayor.

Massell, 42-year-old Jewish vice mayor, swept to a lead with 44,709 votes to Cook's 33,910.

The latest figures gave Massell 52.83% of the vote, compared to 47.16% for Cook. Earlier, Cook, who jumped to an early but shaky lead, had 61% of the votes.

However, his lead fell steadily as the predominantly Negro vote started coming in.

Massell was running 9 to 1 in the black precincts. One large Negro precinct in the 9th Ward reported 934 votes for Massell and 73 for Cook.

2 Russian Cosmonauts Visit Nixon, Dine With Astronauts

Houston (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts flew from a meeting with President Nixon at the White House Tuesday to a special dinner held in their honor by the United States astronauts corps.

Maj. Gen. Georgiy Beregovoy of the Soviet air force, who made a space flight last October, and Konstantin Feoktistov, a scientist on the first three-man team the Russians put into orbit in October 1964, will visit the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston Wednesday.

The cosmonauts were accompanied by astronaut Col. Frank Borman, who invited them to the United States during his trip around the world.

'Very, Very Warm'

"Borman always told me this is the greatest," Beregovoy said through an interpreter. "I see truly they (the newsmen and onlookers gathered to meet the cosmonauts) are very, very warm.

"I am trying to tell you in the spirit of this warmth, I bring the greetings of all the cosmonauts."

Borman headed the American three-man team that went around the moon last Christmas.

About 80 persons, mostly astronauts and space center officials, attended the dinner honoring the astronauts.

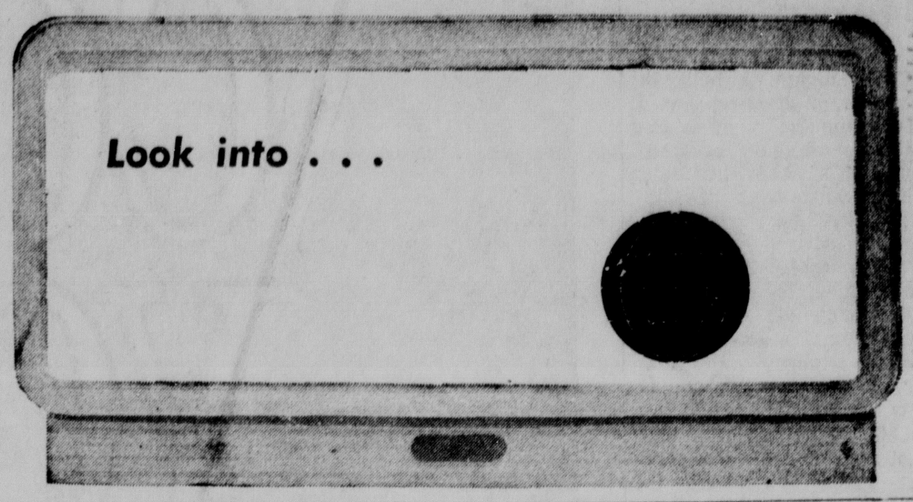
Visit Cancelled

The cosmonauts had been scheduled to visit the space center at Cape Kennedy, but this was cancelled without explanation.

At the White House, a smiling Nixon presented the men with presidential pens and bronze inaugural medals bearing his likeness and that of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Council which advises the White House on space matters.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin was present at the 10-minute picture-taking ceremony in the President's oval office, along with his wife, Irina, who translated the exchanged remarks.

Mrs. Dobrynin told the cosmonauts what Nixon said at the outset of the picture-making: "Let's look like we've just had a very successful space flight."



United Fund Reports 74% Of Goal Collected

At a noon luncheon Tuesday, the Lincoln United Fund reported progress on the 1970 campaign continues on schedule, with 74% or $788,934 of the $1,063,889 goal tabulated to date.

The chairman of the 1970 appeal, Kenneth G. Witt, said he is confident the major portion of the remaining 26% can be raised in the next week.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and Local 286 of the URW-AFL-CIO reported the largest single report to date, $52,154.

Division reports and the percentage of the division goal each represents: special gifts — $152,298 or 86%; unit firms — $407,738 or 88%; loaned execs — $59,574 or 42%; women — $14,048 or 85%; business — $40,904 or 48%; government and education — $144,373 or 66%.

Princess Proves Her Driving Skill

Chelmsford, England (AP) — Princess Anne, 19, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, buckled on a seat belt and successfully drove a police car a dizzy dozen times around a skid pad made to simulate icy road conditions, at the opening of a police cadet training school.

She climbed out and asked, "Now may I have free parking for life?" Last month she drove a double-decker bus at a training center ceremony.

BIAFRA FUND TOPS $11,000

Of the $11,077 donated to date, $6,722 has been contributed by NU students and faculty. Lincoln high school students and faculty raised $346.58.

The fund has been managed by the Rev. Edward Tuchek of Catholic Social Service, Dr. Carroll Lemon of the Lincoln Council of Churches and Rabbi Morton Waldman of Tifereth Israel Synagogue.

The money has been distributed proportionately to the Department of Church World Service of the National Council of Churches, Catholic Relief Services and the American Jewish Committee.

Chilly nights. I built the first fire in the fireplace. It smoked up the room so that we were all teary eyed. All last year's ashes had been taken away. I had to start on the bare hearth.

"Are you sure the damper is open," cried the Brownie leader wiping her weeping eyes.

Well, I had forgotten that. I got a poker end in the lever that opens and closes the thing. But for the life of me could not remember which way was open. Up or down?

I tried it both ways. The fire still smoked.

I said: "Open all the doors and windows."

She said to the children: "Put on your overcoats. We're all going to freeze to death while your father builds the fire."

I said: "What about cooperation instead of criticism?"

"Of 10 bald men, nine are deceitful and the tenth is stupid," says the Chinese proverb.

Nobody knows why the Chinese say this. Maybe to be inscrutable. Everybody says the Chinese are inscrutable and they may just say this to live up to the image.

Science has done a lot about balding. But the scientists lose hair as fast as the stupid fellows.

There is not much man can do when his hair drops out for a breather. And never catches its breath.

Females do not get bald. Yet they do dreadful things to their hair.

You would think such torture would make their hair fall like cut hay. But no. It grows lushly. Clogs combs and hair brushes. Stops up drains. Gets on blue suits.

"I must have got it on me in the elevator," he said.

When I was a Boy Scout I was not so smart. But had plenty of hair and could make a fire that did not smoke.

I finally got our fire going so that it only smoked a little.

"We can't breathe and our eyes are watery," cried the moppets.

I said: "Get down on the floor. The air is better there."

We have four kittens now, the product of Captain Bligh our Manx cat. The cats do not go bald. In fact they have too much hair.

We have cat hair to spare — I wish I could get it in a bunch so I could spare it to someone.

The kittens are three weeks old. The mama keeps them washed and polished. Like you do with a new car.

As they lose their wavy locks, men turn to jewelry. They spend $200 million per annum on cufflinks and such.

This must be true for I hadn't a cufflink when I was a Boy Scout. Today I count 12 pair in my drawer.

Can't say I think of them as substituting for a head of hair. That's what some psychologist said. (I always wonder, do they get paid for making that kind of chatter?)

Anyway, that's what the man said. He said man is dressing himself up to make up for what he considers a masculine loss.

Speaker was not described. Possibly an egghead himself.

Big 8 Plays Toughies

Kickoff, a weekly football sheet published in Chattanooga, Tenn. (that's in the heart of Southern football country), leaves little doubt as to who it considers the toughest football league in the country.

It ranks five Big Eight teams in its top 20 and lists all eight in its top 21 of toughest schedules.

Missouri is rated sixth, Oklahoma 14th, Kansas State 17th, Colorado 23rd and Nebraska 25th.

Among the nation's toughest schedules, it claims Oklahoma State plays the third toughest, Nebraska sixth, Kansas ninth, Colorado 11th, Missouri 17th, Oklahoma 18th, Iowa State 20th and Kansas State 21st.

Denver Broncos offensive lineman Wallace Dickey reflecting on the anonymity under which offensive linemen play today says, "If Hitler is alive somewhere, you can bet he's disguised as an offensive guard."

Or, another Dickeyism on offensive linemen: "They're like secret service agents around the President. You don't recognize them, but you know they're there."

During a sideline dispute with an official, UC Santa Barbara coach Jack Curtice was told, "Go read the book."

Snapped back Curtice, "You read it. I wrote it."

Curtice is a member of the NCAA Rules Committee.

Oklahoma defensive end Bruce DeLoney says his brother saved his football career. DeLoney's uncle gave him a trumpet on his 12th birthday, delighting Bruce's mother, who didn't want her son playing football.

"I was scared," Bruce says. "I thought I had seen the end of football. But my little brother stuffed the trumpet full of beans and ruined it. That ended my career in music."

Oklahoma State coach Floyd Gass tells this one on Duke Babb, his assistant in charge of defense:

"He was signalling Gary Darnell (linebacker and defensive quarterback) what defense to run and he gave a signal holding his nose with the thumb and index finger. Darnell came over and asked, 'Coach, what's that signal?' Duke said, 'You stunk up that last play, now you're on your own.' "

Four Triple Option Possibilities

There are supposed to be three choices with the triple option, but Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty claims his Spartans have four.

"It's really a quadruple option," he says, "the way we do it. We hand the ball off, pitch it out, pass it or maybe just leave it lying there on the ground."

The day after one of UCLA coach Tommy Prothro's television shows, a man called to say his wife had left him and it was Prothro's fault.

"How so?" asked Tommy.

"She was watching 'Laugh-In,' and when I flipped it off and tuned in your show, she just up and walked out on me."

Another thought on offensive linemen from Kansas State middle guard John Stucky: "Yeah, I used to be a back and could go through a game and do nothing and still get my name in the paper. But we defensive players don't have it nearly so rough as the offenstve linemen. Man, they never get any publicity and they probably take more punishment than anybody."

When Denver Bronco backfield coach Hunter Enis was asked why a quarterback called a particular play, he gave this answer:

"It could have been a mistake. But, I want you to know that in the heat of battle the air gets a lot thicker out there between those white lines than it does up in the stands."

Devaney Hoping For 'Either' Rather Than 'Or'

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

After viewing films of last week's Oklahoma State loss to Missouri, Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney came to an either-or conclusion and he's hoping it's the "either" part that's right.

"Oklahoma State played real well against Missouri," he said Tuesday. "They ran right at them and had they not given up the ball on errors a few times, they might have won the game.

"Either Missouri isn't as good as we thought they were or Oklahoma State is real good. I hope it's the first case because if it's not we're going to have a lot of trouble.

"I think we can win Saturday, but we're going to have to play good football to do it."

The Husker coach pointed out that Oklahoma State, under new coach Floyd Gass, is much improved over past years.

"They're a better offensive team," he said, "And they're also more aggressive on defense. Oklahoma State has always been tough defensively."

The Cowboys are running out of a pro-type offense similar to what Kansas State uses.

"This is the most like a pro-style offense we've seen this year," Devaney noted. "We thought we'd see a lot of the pro-type offense at Minnesota, but with their regular quarterback hurt, we didn't see as much of it up there as we thought we would."

The Husker coach has also seen movies of other Oklahoma State games this season, including their upsets of Houston and Texas Tech.

"They ran right through Houston," he noted. "And they ran right at Missouri."

What's the reason for Oklahoma State's apparent improvement? "They've got a lot of players back from last year," Devaney answers. "And they're more versatile on offense. They're generating more offensive punch."

The Husker coach looked at three punters Tuesday in hopes of finding improvement for the NU kicking game that was less than good last week against Kansas.

Devaney took a look at regular punter Dan Schneiss along with Bill Bomberger and Jeff Hughes.

"None of them were outstanding," he said. "In fact they were all pretty eratic. Bomberger was probably the best by a little."

SEATTLE GIVEN ULTIMATUM

Three-Point Program Given To Pilot Owners

. . . OCT. 29 DEADLINE; CRONIN OPTIMISTIC

Chicago (AP) — The American League apparently has given Seattle a three-point ultimatum which must be met in nine days in order to keep Pilots' baseball franchise.

This was learned Tuesday after an informal league meeting following a joint session of the American and National Leagues concerning schedules and player relations.

The three-point ultimatum is believed to be the following:

1. Sicks' Stadium, temporary home of the Pilots, must be enlarged from 22,500 seats to 28,000 by the start of the 1970 season.

2. Plans must be completed for breaking ground for a $40 million domed stadium by Dec. 31, 1970 and the structure must be ready by opening day of the 1973 season.

3. There must be evidence of enough Seattle financial interest so that Cleveland investor William Daley, who owns more than 50 per cent of the club, can get out and give the Pilots local ownership.

Cronin and American League owners are to meet again in Chicago Oct. 29 to learn if the demands are met.

According to Daley, if Seattle cannot hold onto the ball club, it very likely would go to Milwaukee.

"I'd prefer to keep the club in Seattle," said Daley, "and I'm so sincere about that that I'd sell my end for less to Seattle than to groups from other cities that are interested.

"But if the franchise should be moved, I'm sure Milwaukee will get it for one big reason. The American League prefers Milwaukee over other bidders," said Daley.

Cronin, however, felt optimistic that Seattle would meet the conditions and retain the franchise.

Earlier, the American and National leagues heard a progress report on 41 requests from the Players' Association before closing the brief meeting.

Franchise hungry groups from Milwaukee and Dallas — Fort Worth still hovered around the meetings.

William Daley, owner of the Pilots, reiterated dissatisfaction in Seattle and said "The league must determine if the city is going to meet the situation satisfactorily.

"It is my understanding that they will determine this matter at another league meeting next week," added Daley. "It is my thought that if the city can't meet the requirements it would become a question of the league throwing Seattle out. As for myself, I would like to see the franchise stay there and would prefer to sell to a Seattle group before anyone else. Even to the extent of taking less money."

The current agreement with the Players' Association whose spokesman is Marvin Miller expires Dec. 31.

After hearing the progress report on negotiations at the joint meeting, Cronin and NL President Warren Giles said "Authorization was given to go ahead full speed in talks with Miller and members of the association." Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Miller were not present.

The report was made by John Gaherin, advisor to baseball's Player Relations Committee.

"There were 41 items — or requests — made by the Players Association," said Gaherin who refused to reveal any of them. "We reviewed the entire situation and have a complete understanding of what is before us.

"We have had four negotiating meetings so far with Miller and I will see him as soon as I return to New York again. I hope we will have no problems like we had last time."

Seattle Man Seeks Pilot Stock

Seattle (AP) — Fred Danz, a Seattle businessman, began negotiations Tuesday to buy all or part of the American League Pilots' stock in continuing efforts to save the city's baseball franchise.

American League President Joe Cronin said there was no request to move the franchise, though both Dallas-Fort Worth and Milwaukee have expressed interest. However there reportedly were three conditions, all of which have to be met by Oct. 30, before the city could be assured that the team would stay.

They were:

—Expansion of Sicks' Stadium to a seating capacity of 28,000.

—A firm commitment that a permanent stadium would be built by 1973.

— Notification of any ownership change.

That's where Danz comes in. Danz is the operator of the in. Danz is the operator of the Sterling Recreation theaters, radio stations and other amusement operations in Washington. Danz and his attorney, Charles Burdell, met in Chicago Tuesday with William R. Daley, principal stockholder and chairman of the Pilots' board of directors.

Danz wanted to determine how much money would be involved in any transaction. Daley said he would prefer to sell to Seattle interests though he has offers of from $11 million to $13 million from the other cities, Danz said.

The details were outlined in the Seattle Times Tuesday.

Wolbach, Shickley Keep No. 1 Spots In Ratings

. . . MUSTANGS' STIFFEST TEST TONIGHT

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Wolbach continues to set the pace in Class D and Shickley still leads the eight-man teams of the state in this week's high school football ratings for the two divisions.

Wolbach, the defending Class D champion from a year ago, rolled to another lopsided win last weekend, pasting Nebraska Christian, 68-8.

Coach Gene Baldwin says that "we'll find out if we're as good as we think we are on Wednesday night." The Mustangs face their stiffest test of the campaign against North Loup Scotia, a Class C club which has won four of five.

One team among the top five in both Class D and eight-man circles tumbled this past week.

Beemer, No. 2 a week ago among the eleven-man teams, fell to eighth after losing. Two others on the Class D honored list suffered an even greater fate by disappearing from the honored list.

Rosalie, after four straight wins, tried its hand at eight-man and got its come-uppance from Yutan, while No. 10 Sumner dropped its second contest since losing the services of all-state back Dan Simmons to injuries.

Bruning (5-0) and Thedford (6-0) take over the two vacated spots.

The biggest drop of the weekend was suffered by Gresham, No. 5 on the eight-man list last week. Bombed by a 56-6 count by No. 2 Bradshaw, the Blackbirds flew clear out of the picture. They could wing their way back, however. Gresham plays the new No. 5 team, Shelby, tonight.

Bradshaw, Sutherland and Milligan continue behind Shickley in that order, with all the others moving up a notch at Gresham's expense.

The new club to join the group is Doniphan. Coach Bruce Widick's Cardinals have already played seven games and won them all, but face two tough closing foes in Republican City and No. 1 Shickley.

Doniphan was challenged for the available berth by Cody, Maxwell, Cedar Bluffs and Venango, all of whom also still have perfect records.

Bobby Hull Reportedly Retired

Toronto (AP) — A representative for Bobby Hull said Tuesday that the National Hockey League star has retired until such time as the Chicago Black Hawks live up to the terms of a subsidiary contract, signed in 1968.

Lester F. Stanford of Toronto, business adviser to Hull, said the left winger signed the contract Oct. 13, 1968, shortly before ending a holdout last season.

The contract was in addition to the standard NHL agreement, which was signed separately and is not in dispute.

The subsidiary contract included payment deferments, meant to reduce the player's tax burden.

In Chicago, Tommy Ivan, general manager of the Black Hawks, said he had received a telegram from Bobby Hull announcing Hull's retirement.

"But we don't intend to do a thing about it," Ivan said. "It doesn't mean a thing. We have a four-year contract with Hull, with three years left to run, and we expect him to fulfill it."

Ivan said the high-scoring left winger will remain on the active list "and if he should change his mind, the way would be open for him to rejoin the club."

Stanford said Hull and Chicago president William W. Wirtz both initialed the handwritten, fringe-benefit agreement Oct. 13, 1968. He said two copies of the agreement were made but that Hull later lost his copy.

The player now is charging that the Hawks have not lived up to the agreement.

Stanford said: "Until the contract is fulfilled, there is absolutely no possibility of Bobby returning to the Hawks. I can only say that it is a long road to his return."

The standard contract and secondary contract are believed to be worth more than $100,000 and were for a four-year period.

Stanford also said Hull notified the Hawks by telegram last Wednesday that he had retired. This was protection against Hull being suspended by the Hawks for failure to report to the club.

The Hawks have lost their first five games of the 1969-70 season.

Hull, who broke off negotiations with the Hawks last week, is attending cattle sales in Alberta and Saskatchewan. The 30-year-old star, who has scored 50 goals or more in four separate seasons, owns hereford cattle ranches in Picton, Ont.

Polite Aiken Rough On Harrier Foes

Freshman Andy Aiken is the most refreshing young man on the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus this year.

And unlike the commercials, it isn't some magic ingredient he gets from an irresistable tooth paste.

Andy is simply so darned polite it almost makes you wonder what he's been up to.

But such isn't the case with this outstanding cross country and track prospect on coach Woody Greeno's squad.

Young Aiken proudly relates that his politeness and manners were taught at a very young age by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. John M. Aiken of Hastings.

Andy says, "Yes Sir" to every question directed his way by teachers and staff alike around NWU and often times does the same with upperclassmen.

But what pleases Greeno the most is that Andy can run . . . and run fast. In cross country competition this year he has been the leading Plainsman runner in six consecutive meets.

He has helped NWU to a 5-1 dual record with two victories, two seconds, then added a fourth in the Doane Invitational and a ninth at the big South Dakota University invite early this fall.

Andy adjusted quickly to the longer college races as opposed to high school. Most prepsters run about two miles in a meet, but in college the distance is always four or five miles.

This is also quite a feat when it is noted that Andy is only 5-10 and weighs just 140 pounds. Young Aiken got his introduction to running early at Southeast High School under coach Roy Churchill.

Coach Greeno has Andy and his teammates enrolled in the famed 1,000 mile 'run for your life' program. Andy says this is quite an incentive to run during the off-season and the NWU Harriers will reach the 1,000 mile barrier during this first school year.

Andy graduated from Southeast last year despite the fact his parents moved the previous summer to Hastings where Dr. Aiken is engaged in a private business. He is also a veterinarian and had practices at South Sioux City and Lincoln.

Mrs. Aiken is a housewife now, but last school year was an English instructor at the University of Nebraska. Andy has a twin sister, Ann, who is a freshman at Nebraska, a brother, Dave, who is a sophomore at Hastings College and another brother, Rob, who is a Hastings High sophomore.

Former Umpires File Big Suit Against Cronin

New York (AP) — Two former baseball umpires, claiming they were fired because of union activity, filed a $1 million suit against Joe Cronin, president of the American Leagne, Tuesday.

Alexander J. Salerno and William Valentine brought the action in Manhattan Supreme Court. Salerno's suit also named the American League and its lawyer, Paul Porter.

In their suit the umpires charged that on Sept. 16, 1968 Cronin caused "defamatory matter" to be published.

They said this consisted of charges that the umpires were "inefficient, incompetent and unable to perform" their jobs and were "at no time "first class."

Elfstrom Big Eight Lineman Of Week

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI- — Oklahoma's Bill Elstrom lives up to his name. By modern college football standards, he is elfish. Especially for an offensive guard.

But Elstrom, a 196-pounder, looked more like the green giant than one of his helpers to Colorado last Saturday. For his play in the Sooners' 42-30 victory, Elstrom was cited Tuesday as the Big Eight lineman of the week.

The Oklahoma coaching staff grades its offensive linemen every Sunday. A score of 80 is considered a superior mark. Elstrom graded 87 against Colorado.

"Billy had an outstanding game," Oklahoma coach Chuck Fairbanks said. "All of our big-gaining plays went right over Billy. The thing is, Colorado's defensive line did so well in previous games. I didn't have any idea we'd score 42 points against 'em."

Offensive line coach Bill Michael figured out that Sooner backs gained 119 yards on 10 carries over Elfstrom's position. Roy Bell uncorked a 53-yarder over Elstrom, who wiped out a Colorado tackle on the play.

Elstrom was not only a demon on running plays, but also pass-blocked well. "He did a good job overall," said Fairbanks. "We didn't have a single loss all day passing."

Nebraska middle guard Ken Geddes, Kansas State defensive end Manny Barrera and Missouri linebacker Steve Lundholm also received strong support for the weekly award.

Others nominated were Fred Jones, Iowa State defensive tackle; Gary Davenport, Kansas defensive end; Jerry Sherk, Oklahoma State defensive tackle, and Dick Melin, Colorado offensive guard.

Plainsmen Cagers Big, Need Backcourt Help

Bigger and better?

Veteran Nebraska Wesleyan basketball coach Irv Peterson, the 19th winningest mentor in the country with a 301-170 mark, knows his 1969-70 club will be taller and can only hope for an improvement on last year's 13-13 record.

Peterson started his 20th season as head coach of the Plainsmen Monday, greeting a 17-man squad which included eight lettermen.

"I'm not sure how the kids will do. If they can get some of the basic fundamentals down, master the set patterns and play defense, they have good potential. I'm surely not discouraged," said Peterson.

"We have good overall height. I just need to get somebody as a leader out of the bunch."

Peterson terms "the guard situation a question mark" with the loss of his superb backcourt combination of Kenny Ahl and Kim Busch, now head coaches themselves at Bloomfield and Milligan respectively.

Ahl finished 12th in the nation last year in free throw accuracy and set a school career scoring mark with 583 points for a three-year record of 1,636.

Peterson moved seven of his top freshmen up to the varsity this year, and the guard answer may lie in that group. However, lettermen Rick Boals (6-2), Tom Brown (6-3), Steve Peterson (6-1) and Ernie Strasil (6-5) can handle the ball outside.

Some of the best sophomores are 6-2 Roger Hurst and 5-10 Earl Nannen (the frosh guards last season), 6-3 Dan McCauley, who can also play forward and 6-3 Lyle Hiatt, who shoots well outside.

The Plainsman front line will be solid with the return of 6-4 junior John Brown, (20.7) who established a new school record and finished 21st in the nation with a 58.4 field goal percentage last year. He canned 216 of 370 shots.

Also back is promising 6-9 sophomore Bob Beecham, who was bothered by an eye injury last season, but still saw plenty of action on both the frosh and varsity squads.

Mike Zimmerman, a 6-10 senior, and Bruce Oberhelman, a 6-5 junior, are returning monogram winners who will help under the boards. There are 10 players on the squad 6-3 or better.

John McLaughlin at 6-3 and transfer John Aronson at 6-2 are ready to play. Some of the best incoming freshmen include 6-3 Rich Butler (Lincoln East), Dick French (Wahoo) and Riedell Lintz (Pius X).

"I'll have to slow the game down somewhat this year," Peterson said. "We won't have the breaking team like in the past. How well they do depends on whether they jell fast enough."

The Plainsmen played a rugged schedule last season including major powers Loyola of Chicago, South Dakota State, Kentucky State and national defensive leader Ashland.

This year the club has four games in California, two in Colorado and plays in two tournaments, one a season-opener at Midland which is billed as the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (NIAC) inaugural Dec. 1-3.

Dix Star Top Player Last Week

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Before the high school football season got under way, a big national magazine published some projected prep all-American teams.

Some of the biggest schools in the top gridiron states in the country were honored to have a player listed. Texas, Pennsylvania, California, and Michigan lead the way.

Most followers of Husker state prep sports felt fortunate that three Nebraska high school standouts made the list. One was from Omaha, another from Lincoln. The third was from Dix.

An all-state choice as a junior, the small-school choice was the Panthers' Dan McKinney, who picks up still another honor as our Player of the Week.

McKinney, a Class D performer for a four-year school with just 46 boys, carried the ball 15 times in Dix's latest triumph, and averaged over 10 yards per carry.

He also fired seven passes, completing four of them for an additional 185 yards in total offense. Two of the aerials went for touchdowns.

McKinney also tallied a pair of TD's himself and then topped off the evening by booting three extra points.

Dix, in beating Dalton 60-6, captured its sixth straight win of the campaign. The Panthers are rated No. 2 in the state among the small school eleven man teams.

Others who had outstanding games over the past weekend and deserve special recognition include:

Tom Hitchcock, Hildreth — Led his club to the first win over Loomis in the school's history. Eight yards per carry, eight completions in 15 passes and scored three TD's and threw for another.

Frank Jones, Nelson — Rushed for 240 yards while topping Sandy Creek, 27-13. Scored three times, one on a 64-yard run, another on the 30-yard pass.

Doug Johnson, Hebron — Paced the Bears to a big second-half comeback, as Hebron scored all 34 points after intermission for a 34-20 win over Class B Superior. Doug tallied twice, getting things started with a 30-yard run with a recovered fumble.

Rick Nekl, Shelby — Not a bad night. Rick passed for six touchdowns, ran for one, then ran, kicked and passed for six extra point counters. Shelby trounced Hordville, 56-0.

Dave Forbes, York — His punts kept Aurora on its heels all night until intercepted passes and fumble recoveries enabled Dave to move the Duke offense in for the scores. York captured its sixth straight win, 16-6.

Don Cool, McCool Junction — You'd never expect him to get rattled. Cool playing for McCool. And he came through under pressure in a 41-32 cliff-hanger with Marquette, scoring four times.

Cyclones, Jayhawks Scrimmage

From News Wires

Ames, Iowa — Iowa State went through a 30-minute scrimmage Tuesday in preparation for what coach Johnny Majors considers one of the toughest offensive games of the season.

Majors worked his squad on running offense, pass play protection and general execution of offensive plays. He said the Kansas team, which Iowa State faces Saturday in a Homecoming battle, is a "big strong defensive team" which compares with Syracuse.

Kansas

Lawrence, Kan — Kansas football coach Pepper Rodgers held a rare goal-line scrimmage to climax Tuesday's workout and found he liked it.

"There were some good licks," Rodgers said. "I think we're at the point of the season where we need to do something different to stimulate enthusiasm. Scrimmaging is the front part of football."

Missouri

Columbia, Mo. — Joe Hauptman, a defensive end who missed Missouri's last two football games because of a knee injury, was back at a starting position Tuesday.

He replaced Mike Bennett, who is out with a foot injury. Bennett probably will not play against Colorado at Boulder Saturday.

Sophomore John Brown continues to man the other defensive end spot.

Pete Buha, a reserve defensive back who has been out three weeks with a sprained foot, also was back in action.

Kansas State

Manhattan, Kan. — Coach Vince Gibson said Kansas State's football workout "wasn't as good a Tuesday practice as we usually have. We normally are a little more fired up."

In looking forward to Oklahoma, Gibson said, "You can't shut off Steve Owens but you've got to slow him down. The key is not letting those other backs get loose and make the big play."

Gibson said the only Wildcat definitely out for the Oklahoma clash Saturday is end John Acker.

Tagge Also Leads Loop In Air With 876 Yards

Kansas City, Mo. — Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge has added the Big Eight passing lead to his total offense lead in statistics released Tuesday.

The Husker sophomore has passed for 876 yards, one more than Kansas State junior Lynn Dickey and his total offense mark is 982 yards with Dickey second at 822 yards.

Husker pass receivers Jeff Kinney, Jim McFarland and Larry Frost continue to rank 1-2-3 in that department.

Moratorium On Railroad Service Cuts Supported

By The Associated Press

A proposal that Congress declare a moratorium on all reductions and terminations of railroad passenger service until a comprehensive investigation has been conducted is favored by the Nebraska State Railway Commission.

The commission said Tuesday it takes the position that the four month maximum period between the time a railroad makes application and the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) makes its decision is too short for state commissions to prepare their cases.

Currently pending are two train cutback applications which, if approved, will deprive Nebraska of passenger train service "of long standing," the commission said.

The commission has formally protested the proposed removal from service of the California Zephyr, and a reduction of service by the City of San Francisco.

The Western Pacific Railway Co. is making its third attempt in three years to discontinue the California Zephyr. Nebraska commission representatives appeared in San Francisco Oct. 6 to ask the ICC to deny the application.

Commissioner Fred N. Peterson and Gordon E. Ganka, director of rates and services, will represent the Nebraska commission in opposing an application by the Southern Pacific Railway Co. to reduce passenger train service by the City of San Francisco from daily to three times a week. The ICC hearing on this application starts next Monday in Salt Lake City.

Licensed Beverage Group Picks Future Meeting Sites

The Nebraska Licensed Beverage Association board of directors Tuesday scheduled the association's January Quarterly meeting for South Sioux City and selected Omaha as the site of the 1970 annual convention.

The board meeting wrapped the group's 24th annual meeting.

Named "Tavern Man of the Year" at the convention was John Schwindt of Lincoln.

Among the main items of discussion at the convention was a newly-passed state law requiring liquor dealers to keep a record book on persons who might be younger than 20 and who are asked to show documentary proof of age when attempting to purchase alcoholic beverages.

The law specifies that the record show the name and address of the purchaser, his signature and any identification shown.

Available at the convention were form books that dealers can use to comply with the law.

Dorothy Schwid, NLBA executive secretary, said the association had studied similar records kept by dealers in other states before creating the form being offered.

The signing of the record does not exonerate a dealer if it is later found that a person who signed is a minor. But according to Norris Jesse of Lincoln, newly elected NLBA board chairman, "it might help in the dealer's defense."

A number of resolutions were passed at the convention, but officials declined to make them public at the present.

Edward Prenger of Norfolk, the newly elected president, said the resolutions require that several public officials be contacted and any public announcement would have to await the contacts.

Communications Director Leaving

Charles E. Adams, state telecommunications director for the past two years, has resigned effective Nov. 1, State Administrative Services Director Robert McManus confirmed Tuesday.

Adams said he is leaving the post so a successor with engineering qualifications can be named.

"The job needs engineering talent," he said, "but funds for a separate engineering position were not approved in the new budget."

Adams said he is stepping aside so engineering and administration can be combined into a single position.

Adams became the state's first telecommunications director in July, 1967, following his retirement as an Air Force major and communications officer for the Strategic Air Force Command at Offutt AFB.

Requests Okayed For Power Lines

The State Railway Commission Tuesday approved requests by four utilities for authority to construct electric transmission lines.

Approved were applications by:

—Highline Electric Association, Holyoke, Colo., for lines in Chase County.
—Custer Public Power District, Broken Bow, for lines in Custer County.
—McCook Public Power District McCook, for lines in Hitchcock and Red Willow Counties.
—Consumers Public Power District, Columbus, for lines in Madison County.

Venice May Drown In 70 Years

The New York Times

London Times Dispatch

Milan, Italy — Unless an effective cure is found, Venice might become a dead city within 70 years — a man's span of life.

This statement was contained in a report prepared by experts of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and presented at a recent international conference on the preservation of Venice which was conducted at the Cini Foundation there.

Fifty years ago, the soil on which the city rests was sinking at a rate of one centimeter every 10 years; in the last 10 years, the rate had increased to five centimeters. In the meantime, the level of the lagoon rose by another centimeter every 10 years.

Going Under

"Unless means are found to contain this phenomenon," the report reads, "streets, piazzas and the building ground-floors will be permanently under water within 70 years."

The conference was convened to take stock of the studies made on the causes of the phenomenon and of the remedies suggested.

There was wide agreement among the Italian and foreign experts that the main cause of the sinking of the soil's surface was the vacuum created by the shrinking volume of the underground waters.

Wells And Diversion

This was seen as the consequence of the digging of artesian wells, particularly in the industrial suburb of Malghera, and the diverting of rivers and streams for electricity production, irrigation and water-supply purposes.

The question whether the sinking was aggravated by works undertaken in the lagoon was not quite solved. A Dutch expert, Prof. L. J. Mostertman, expressed the view, supported by many, that the excavation now under way of a deep-water canal through the lagoon that should give access to the port to big ships, particularly tankers, might make the inflow of the tides submerging Venice more rapid but not cause them

Pleads For Aqueduct

In his concluding address at the conference, Mayor Giovanni Sisca Favaretto pleaded for the speedy approval of a bill providing for the building of a new aqueduct, using the waters of the River Sele, which would make it possible to fill the wells.

The mayor also expressed favor for the completion of the deep-water canal, in spite of the doubts raised by the experts.

The canal is seen by the mayor as vital, not only to the development of the Malghera industrial ara, but also to preserving Venice from dangers deriving from the increasing number and size of the tankers entering the port.

Tax Writers Give In Partially

©The New York Times

Washington — The Senate Finance Committee voted Tuesday to tax more heavily than the Nixon administration wanted the capital gains received by many upper-bracket taxpayers The tax would not be as large as the House had voted, however.

The administration had asked the Senate committee to modify this portion of the tax reform bill passed by the House on the ground that the increased taxes imposed on capital gains in the House bill could "remove a large measure of the incentive for private capital to engage in new and expanedd business ventures."

The Senate committee went only part of the way toward the liberalization the administration wanted.

Decision Reversed

In a separate action, the committee responded to an unusual personal appeal by George W. Romney secretary of housing and urban development, and voted to reverse a decision it made Monday concerning the taxation of the sale of certain types of government-assisted housing projects. The committee voted to permit what amounts to a postponement of the tax on any gain from such sales.

The key action of the committee on capital gains had to do with the current provision of the tax law that sets the maximum rate at which capital gains may be taxed at 25%.

For taxpayers who are in a tax bracket of less than 50%, capital gains are taxed at half of their regular tax rate. But for thos above the 50% rate — which means married couples with taxable incomes of $52,000 or more under present law — the rate is a flat 25%.

House OKd 35%

The House had voted to do away with this distinction and to make the rate half the regular rate regardless of the income of the taxpayer. That would have put the top rate for capital gains, under the present rate schedule, at 35%.

The administration, responding in part to the strong objections of the securities industry, decided that doing away with the 25% ceiling was too harsh a step.

It proposed, instead, a complex formula which would have eliminated the 25% ceiling only for persons with very large amounts of capital gains or whose capital gains constituted a very large proportion of their total incomes.

The Senate committee, in modifying the administration's proposal, voted to deny the use of the 25% ceiling to anyone who has tax-preferred income, other than capital gains, of more than $10,000.

Not Yet Defined

What constitutes tax-preferred income for the purposes of this section of the bill, has not yet been defined by the committee. It may include such items as part of the depletion allowance for mining industries, part of the rapid depreciation on buildings, the capital gains on property donated to charity, and other items.

The committee also voted to deny the use of the 25% ceiling tax rate on capital gains to any married couple that has more than $140,000 in such gains in a single year and any single individual who has more than $85.000 worth.

Capital gains represent the difference between the price originally paid for a property — including real estate, stocks or other property — and the price for which it is sold. The lower rate of tax is applied only if the property has been held for at least six months before it is sold.

The House bill had extended this holding period to one year, but the Senate committee voted to go back to the six-month holding period earlier in its consideration of the reform bill.

The increase that the committee voted in the capital gains tax for top-bracket individuals would be phased in over a period of three years.

Anti-Police Blow Struck By Motorist

Oxnard, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Blase struck one more blow Tuesday in the never-ending struggle between the motorist and the traffic cop.

Blase is one up on most of us in this unequal struggle. He is a lawyer and such is his skill that he has the wheels of justice in Ventura County not only grinding exceedingly fine but also halted.

Municipal Judge Robert J. Soares Tuesday ordered a jury trial in the case of Richard Blase. But he will not be the defendant. The two officers who arrested him have that distinction.

Tailgated

The Blase story goes back to August when he was driving along, minding his own business until another car started tailgating him. Blase has a temper to match his name and he decided to make a "citizen's arrest."

It did not deter him that the tailgater was a black job with the golden letters "Oxnard Police" and it was trying to catch a speeder in front of Blase.

He joined in the chase and pulled up beside officers Ken Budrow and Richard Staniland, who were giving a ticket to the third party.

Discussion Ensues

Blase told the officers they were under arrest. Rudrow told him to blast off. Blase shouted "citizen's arrest." After further discussion during which Rudrow produced but did not use a can of chemical Mace, the trio went to the police station.

Blase demanded to have another lawyer present. The officers ignored him and booked him for interfering with an officer in performance of duty, giving false information and driving without a license.

Blase came back a short-time later with countercharges of tailgating, assault and refusal to let him contact his lawyer.

Issued, Revoked

Last Friday Municipal Judge Robert L. Shaw issued warrants for the arrest of the officers. On Monday a Superior Court revoked the warrants.

Tuesday Judge Soares revoked the release of the officers on their own recognizance. The district attorney said the state did not wish to prosecute because the officers were simply doing their duty but Soares set a jury trial for Nov. 17.

Blase's own trial will take place about the same time.

Honorary To Meet

Mu Epsilon Nu, a men's honorary and professional teachers fraternity, will hold its national convention Saturday and Sunday at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Stock Prices Rise In Heavy Trading

New York (AP) — The stock market forged upward along a broad front in heavy trading Tuesday with gains of individual issues almost doubling declines.

The market moved steadily up, with 89 blocks of 190,000 volume increasing as prices rose. The heavy trading pace near the close made the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape three minutes late at the bell.

Institutional trading perked up, with 8 blocks of 190,000 shares or more changing hands compared with 62 Monday.

Investors are basing their buying on signs of a cooling economy and President Nixon's scheduling a major address Nov. 3, one day before elections, analysts said.

"Anything short of a ceasefire announcement in Vietnam by the President is going to disappoint a lot of investors," one analyst said.

The move of the Dow Jones average of 3 in0dustrials, beyond the psychologically important 840 resistance level early in the morning, helped spur buying, analysts said.

At 10:30 a.m. EDT the Dow stood at 841.14 and moved steadily upward to close with a gain of 7.65 at 846.88.

The Associated Press 60-stock average climbed 1.6 to 296.2, with industrials up 3.7, utilities up .4, and rails up .3.

The New York Stock Exchange index of 54.31. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index some 1,200 common stocks rose 0.43 to gained .74 to 92.20.

Institutional trading in blocks of 10,000 shares or more was active and included 179,000 shares of Del E. Webb at 17 off ⅝, 134,000 shares of Crown Zellerbach, unchanged at 33½.

Of the 20 most-active stocks on the New York exchange, 9 advanced, 10 declined, and 1 was unchanged.

Boosted by the block trade, Del E. Webb was most-active, off ⅞ at 16¾ on total turnover of 292,300 shares.

The American Stock Exchange had a sharp advance in active trading, its ninth consecutive advance.

The Amex price index rose 26 cents to $28.12. Among 1,097 issues traded, 593 advanced and 355 declined. Volume jumped to 7.37 million shares from 5.3 million Monday.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Social Gains Damaged By Brokers' Inefficiency

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Small Investors

The support of a modest rise in commissions for executing orders for small investors by the nation's largest brokerage firm, which has pioneered in opening up mass markets for tokens of thrift, directs attention to the damage recently done to long-term social gains by "back of the house" inefficiency.

During the sessions of record breaking volume earlier in the year, many brokers were unable to cope with the situation and, in a desperate spirit, began to back away from long-term wholesome moves to increase the segment of the population known as capitalists. The negative moves were expressed in rules against buying extremely low priced shares, in withholding facilities for small lot orders of standard stocks, in the closing down of offices and resources, and in disinclination to expand the customer list. This adjustment ran counter to the broad effort of the New York Stock Exchange to merchandise the concepts of getting vast new multitudes to "buy shares in America."

Prior to the big speculative markets, the Stock Exchange was whooping it up on the highways and the byways, and offering such inducements for the little fellow as the Monthly Investment Plan whereby good stocks could be bought out of income through installment saving. Some decades ago in a book interpreting the social significance of the fact that the number of investors was increasing at a greater rate than the general population growth, the Harvard economist, Thomas N. Carver, referred approvingly to the new situation as the "present economic revolution in the United States."

Before Politics

This was years before contemporary political leaders got into the act. In last year's election campaign, Nixon urged "black capitalism" and recommended that steps be taken to induce larger numbers of all groups to get a "piece of the action".

Accordingly, whatever the emergency causes may have been, it was retrogressive for Wall Street in recent months to turn a cold shoulder to the emerging small capitalists.

If, as can readily be demonstrated, there are economics of volume, and the effort in executing a 1,000-share order may not be as great as the trouble of buying or selling an odd lot, then it would indeed be better to authorize a modest increase in fees rather than to discontinue the trend toward increasing the number of investors relatively and absolutely.

There is precedent for such discrimination in the long-term Wall Street practice of putting an eighth or a quarter of a point penalty on the odd-lot investor. In a genuinely competitive society, each is expected to meet the costs which his operations incur. Obviously, however, the little fellow should not be penalized in order to subsidize volume discounts to big operators.

No Excuse

A commission rise, however, should not be used as an excuse for letting down on efforts to offset inflation of costs through mechanization and computerization. It should be employed to resume merchandising of the thrift concept to vast numbers of persons without a need egg.

And, instead of stock brokers engaging "finders" to seek out extraneous philanthropies to which their excess earnings can be in part contributed, they should recognize that they can improve the nation by attracting larger numbers to the benefits of long-term investment in prime securities.

Just as numerous pharmaceutical, chemical, electronic, motor and other companies each year make investments in future improvements through research and development, brokers and investment dealers should take a larger view of their opportunity to exert leadership in decreasing the relative number of "have-nots" and swelling the ranks of the "haves."

A survey of security analysts conducted by Don Howard Personnel, Inc. showed that analysts think that the little fellow is neglected. When asked: "Do you have any reservations about the advice available to the 'small' investor as compared with that given the large one?", 72% responded in the affirmative.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self-addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be handled in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

'22 Essex Discovered In Recluse's Basement

Chicago (UPI) — Firemen extinguished a blaze in the home of James McTighe and discovered a 1922 Essex, covered with dust but undisturbed by the fire, in the basement of the South Side home.

How long the car had been there, why it was there, or how it got there remained a mystery. McTighe can be of no help, having been found dead the week before the fire. So authorities were left with the puzzle of how the automobile, resting as if the basement of the old house had been built around it, got there.

Neighbors said McTighe had been a recluse, rarely seen or heard by his neighbors. One of them called police last week and they broke into the house and found McTighe, who was somewhere in his late 70s, dead. He left no family and apparently had no friends, neighbors said, except one man who moved away last year.

In any case, the car must have been there for a good many years. It still bore 1925 Arizona license plates, and was covered with many years' accumulation of dust.

Someone advanced the theory that the car might have been driven into the basement after a section of the back wall had been removed, rather than before the house was built.

Whatever the origin, the car may prove to be McTighe's most valuable possession when sold to a collector of vintage autos.

Child Stealing Charges Filed Against Two

Omaha (AP) — Child stealing charges were filed by Douglas County authorities Tuesday against an Omaha private detective and a California doctor.

Two counts each were filed against Robert O. Lickert, Omaha detective, who formerly was a police department detective, and Dr. William J. Dowling, who lives in the Los Angeles area.

They are accused of taking two of Dowling's children from the home of his divorced wife, Mrs. Sharon Dowling, in Omaha Sunday.

Deputy County Attorney William Gallup said the Dowlings were divorced in California about three years ago and Mrs. Dowling was given custody of the children.

The two men are accused of taking Kathleen V. Dowling, 4, and her brother, Joseph W., 7, Sunday afternoon. Gallup said the children are now in California. Warrants for Dr. Dowling have been sent to California, he said.

Likely Candidate Seen In Mexico

Mexico City (AP) — Interior Minister Luis Echeverria Alvarez emerged Tuesday as the most likely candidate for the dominant party's nomination to be Mexico's next president. All three branches of Mexico's ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) threw their support to him.

PRI secretary Manuel Pizarro Macias reported messages of support had streamed into party headquarters through the day "from all parts of the republic.

Douglas Board Hears Papio And Platte Project Reports

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas County Board heard a report from the Army Engineers Tuesday on the progress of funding for the Papio flood control project and a viewpoint on the proposed Platte River dam.

Board members have not taken a stand on the proposed $500-million Platte River project.

The county is seeking $26 million from the federal government for the Papio project, but the project is now hung up in Washington.

Asked if there would be conflicts between the Papio project and the proposed Platte River Dam, Charles Thomas, planning and reports chief for the engineers, replied: "This is a problem. They are not competing yet . . . but I don't know what the funding situation will be."

Thomas told the board that by the year 2040 the Platte project would result in an additional growth in the area of 350,000 people, 148,000 jobs and 120,000 homes. Income in the area, he said would increase by $5.4 billion.

He said although there would be an early small reduction in tax revenues because of removal of land from tax rolls, the state tax take should increase by $507 million a year by 2040.

He said although the Engineers had alternate plans — opponents of the Platte River dam had suggested these to the board—the corps feels the Platte proposal is best. He said the alternates calling for a series of smaller dams on the various tributaries of the Platte and some channel stabilizing work might be in competition with the plans of irrigation districts along the tributaries.

Mrs. Krassig Dies; Apparent Suicide Victim

Mrs. Betty Ann Krassig, 48, of 3851 C, died Tuesday of an apparent suicide, police said.

Albert L. Otterman of 1734 So. 48th, Mrs. Krassig's stepbrother, told police he went to her home early Tuesday afternoon and found her body hanging in the basement.

Mrs. Krassig was a registered nurse and the mother of three children, all of whom lived with her. Her husband died in California last December and she then moved to Lincoln. Otterman said that she had been "quite despondent and had been sick recently," according to Lincoln police reports.

New York Times Earnings Higher Than Last Year

New York (UPI) — The New York Times Co. Tuesday reported higher earnings for the first nine months of 1969.

Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30 was $10,256,000 or $1.18 a share compared to $9,367,000 or $1.07 a share for the same period last year. The per share figures were revised to reflect a four-for-one stock split Oct. 3, 1968.

Total operating revenues for the 1969 period were $173,276,000 compared to $157,007,000 last year.

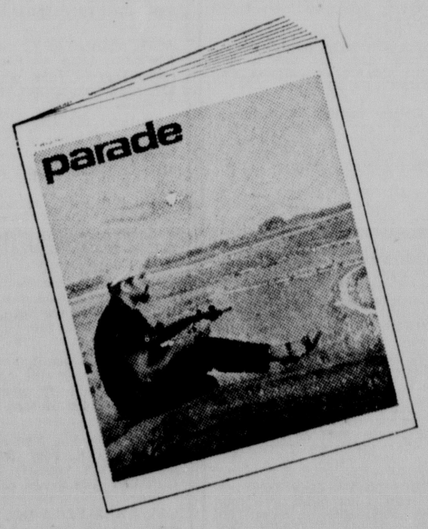
Marchi Endorsed

New York (UPI) — The New York Daily News endorsed Republican State Sen. John Marchi for mayor in an editorial.

COMING IN PARADE

LIFE ON AN ISRAELI KIBBUTZ UNDER ARAB GUNS—Attacks on kibbutz settlements at the Arab-Israeli border have become more frequent and forceful. How are kibbutzniks affected by the constant attacks? What is it like for their children growing up under gunfire? What precautions must they take? How long can they last? George Michaelson, who recently spent a week at Kibbutz Ashdot-Yaakov, Israel, gives a stirring first-hand report of life under Arab guns.

THE GROWING MENACE OF THE PRIVATE PLANE—In 1968 there were 38 midair collisions, all involving at least one private plane. In another 1128 near-disasters, the overwhelming majority of brushes with death involved private planes. Why isn't something being done before more catastrophes occur? Parade's Jack Anderson lashes out at the Federal Aviation Administration which allows itself to be intimidated by the powerful AOPA (owners of private aircraft).



YOUTH NOTES—Most of the 630 underground newspapers in the U.S. are published by young people to fill a vacuum they find in the Establishment press. Parade's Youth Notes gives the facts on this and a number of other controversial subjects involving youth activities.

A NO-TRICK TREAT—Trick-or-treat time is just around the corner. Parade's Food Editor Beth Merriman gives the recipes for two Halloween specialties—chocolate-nut doughnuts and delicious festival punch.

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

Forty-one of the 50 United States are larger than Switzerland.

☆ ☆ ☆

Argentinian sheep ranches may cover thousands of square miles, but only a few men and well-trained dogs are needed to tend the huge flocks.

☆ ☆ ☆

The aviation industry is turning out small planes especially designed for spraying or dusting crops. One is a new type of the "obsolete" biplane.

Busy as a bee is a good metaphor. These hustling insects must visit about 2,000 flowers for each tablespoon of honey they make.

☆ ☆ ☆

There are 1,500 castles in Spain, compared with 10,000 at one time.

Perhaps 10% of the world is left-handed. No one knows why. Some scientists believe the tendency is inherited; others feel environment plays a role.

Texas is the nation's leading livestock state.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
